Truce Bids Halt War In Katanga

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI) — Katanga President Moise Tshombe flew to Kintons with U.S. Ambassador Edmund Gullion today to meet Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Acting Secretary-General Thant has instructed the UN command in the Congo to seek a temporary truce, officials said today.

(From Reuters, UPI)

ELISABETHVILLE—Katanga province and the United Nations were reported Monday night to have agreed to stop fighting while Katanga President Moise Tshombe and central Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula meet today in a bid to straighten out their differences.

The secessionist province's information minister, Albert Nyembo, announced his government and the UN have agreed to a "temporary truce" during the Tshombe-Adoula meeting scheduled for today at Kintons, a United Nations-controlled town west of the central capital of Leopoldville.

The meeting was arranged at Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, Monday by United States Ambassador Edmund Gullion. Tshombe drove there to see Gullion.

MINE HQ ATTACKED

Fighting in the Elisabethville area stopped in the wake of a fierce UN ground air attack Monday which scored few successes against determined Katangan troops.

Main target of repeated rocket and cannon attacks by UN Swedish and Indian fighter planes was the big Union Miniere Mining Company headquarters on the outskirts of this capital under siege for 13 days.

COMPANY ACCUSED

The company, backbone of the Katanga economy, has been accused by the UN of providing arms and bases for the troops of the secessionist province.

On the ground, UN armored cars, followed by patrols, fought their way into central Elisabethville but were unable to wrest control of the downtown area from Katanga troops.

Spirits for Mending

Neighbors' Burdens Are Also Yours

By TED PULFORD

Among all of mankind's many calendars, there is no day quite like Christmas.

This day, more than any other, calls us to spiritual account and bids us measure our worth to our fellow man.

It is a reckoning we should welcome because—on Christmas Day—we are none of us one iota richer in the true values than the poorest man among us. On this day, finally, we become responsible for one another.

Donations to the 500 Fund may be mailed or brought to The Daily Colonist, 9231 Douglas, or left at Accounting of Victoria, 100 Yates, between 9 and 5.

It is not a comforting thing to read—or to write—Christmas stories without happy endings, but this is the season of truth; the season for turning to the blind, the lame and the bereft of hope and saying: "We see you. You are part of us. We will help you."

During the weeks just past, I visited many of the men and women whose families will receive 500 Fund cheques this Christmas. I have seen enough pain and hardship, frustration and despair, broken hearts and broken dreams, to last me a lifetime.

I have noted, too, the almost tangible sense of abandonment which rips through the homes of these people like some terrible disease.

The law, of course, will not let them freeze, or starve, or sicken without treatment; but the welfare regulations make no provision for the restoration of a crushed spirit or the nursing of a broken heart.

No agency but the people of Victoria can supply cures for these maladies and the 500 Fund was created for their use.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union early today vetoed a Security Council resolution calling for a ceasefire in India's attack of Portuguese territories and the United States immediately charged that the move might be a beginning of the UN's "death."

The council voted seven to four in favor of the Western resolution asking for an immediate cessation of hostilities of Indian invasion forces in Goa, but one of the opposing votes was that of the Soviet Union, which could block

Takeover 'Justified' By Gandhi

LONDON (UPI)—The Indian Information Service quoted the late Mahatma K. Gandhi yesterday in justification of India's invasion of Goa.

The service quoted Gandhi as saying in 1946 that "Goa cannot be allowed to exist as a separate entity in opposition to the laws of a free state."

West Deplores Invasion But Red Bloc Applauds

(From AP, UPI)

LONDON—Britain sided Monday with ancient ally Portugal against Commonwealth partner India in the Goa conflict. The Communists applauded and Western powers deplored the Indian invasion of three Portuguese territories.

Such neutrals as Indonesia and the United Arab Republic came to the defence of Prime Minister Nehru, a fellow neutral. But the Western press called the Indian military action an affront to the principles so often preached by Nehru.

Britain threw its weight behind a Portuguese appeal to the United Nations.

INDIA CRITICIZED

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker criticized India and called for United Nations action to settle the dispute over Goa peacefully.

Portuguese Surrender

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Portuguese forces in Goa have surrendered and the Indian operation there has ended, an official Indian government announcement said here today.

Just 36 hours after Indian troops invaded the three Portuguese territories—Goa, Damao and Diu—the surrender of Goa's capital, Nova Goa, was announced.

Goa was the largest of the three west coast territories with an area of 1,300 square miles. Damao and Diu, totaling 70 square miles in area, had fallen earlier.

The territories, which Portugal held since the 16th century and had vowed to defend to death, fell to Indian forces with little fight.

FEW CASUALTIES

A spokesman for the Indian defence ministry said casualties were light on both sides.

Earlier reports from Belem, on the Goa front south of here, said Indian forces were poised outside Nova Goa but their formal victory was delayed until this morning.

They claimed well-armed Portuguese troops were reported to have entrenched themselves in a semi-circle around Nova Goa for a fight to the finish.

End of a Neutralist

Man of Peace Wages War

By PHIL NEWSON

United Press International

"What the world is seeing at the moment is a perfect example of the kind of a nationalist—a neutral can turn into when scratched."

It was the Sydney, Australia, Sun speaking editorially of the Indian attack on Goa and two other tiny Portuguese enclaves on the west coast of India.

It was a reaction which the role of aggressor marked must have been shared by the end of United States, British and United Nations attempts to bring the quarrel to mediation.

Having made his decision, Nehru, the peace-maker, thus turned his back on others who would attempt to keep the peace.

It is, as the Sydney Sun remarked, a perfect example of a neutralist scratched.

Certainly, his military venture against the small and ancient Portuguese holding on the Indian sub continent seemed out of accord with his own words in Mexico City scarcely a month ago.

There, speaking to Mexico City councilmen, he said:

"War cannot solve any problem. I hope that men will adjust their minds to the idea of peace."

But two weeks later, back in his own favorite forum before the Indian Parliament in New Delhi, he expressed his own inner conflict.

"I am free to confess to this House," he said, "that my soul reacts against war anywhere. That is the training I received throughout my life, and I cannot easily get rid of it at the age of 72."

The action casting Nehru in

Portugal Interns Indians

LONDON (Reuters)—Portugal rounded up Indians in its overseas territories Monday, allegedly for their own protection in the wake of the Indian invasion of the Portuguese territory of Goa on India's west coast.

The biggest group interned—about 12,000—was in Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, where there is a large concentration of Indian traders.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Fleck

The house I'm writing in has harbored a long succession of dogs and cats; at present, we own a French poodle and two semi-Siamese cats.

Since the cats are more or less the private property of my daughter Jill, I've always felt more partial to the dog side of our little animal kingdom and have unconsciously assumed dogs are superior to cats.

But there's a case to make for the other side and it has never been made better than by the late Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, whose essay on the cat appears in a new anthology "Of Cats and Men" (Collier paperback).

Consider, if you please, these undeniable facts: "When a cat aims at the top of a fence or the surface of a table, he usually succeeds at the first attempt, unlike the dog, who tries five or six times and continues to try after the impossibility of attainment has been clearly demonstrated."

Swifter Than Wings

"The cat catches birds on the ground by outguessing them, and then by a motion swifter than wings; but if the bird rises in the air, the cat makes no attempt at pursuit, which he knows to be futile and undignified; the dog, on the other hand, will chase after flying birds as long as he is able to run, although the percentage of hits is zero."

"The patience of the cat in hunting is one reason he seldom returns empty-clawed. The dog will show enthusiasm over a hole in the ground; he will hark, and dig madly with his paws; but unless something happens within five minutes, his excitement cools; he goes away and forgets all about it."

"In dignity and neatness the dog does not compare with the cat. He is a bulky good fellow; he leaps at you, places his muddy paws on your shirt bosom, and is not satisfied after swimming unless he can shake himself at your impeccability. Indoors he wags his tail violently, cheerfully knocking down various objects."

By Some Mischance

"The cat, on the other hand, shows his affection by rubbing gently against your ankles, and he will spring from a table to a narrow shelf covered with fragile objects without disturbing anything."

"If by some mischance you enter the house and the dog is left outside, he is in a temper of nerves; he is frantic. He thinks he has lost you forever, and being unable to entertain himself, he scratches at the door, he harks and howls in heartrending fashion. If, on the other hand, you kick the cat out of the house, he remains thoughtful a moment, as if to say: 'Now I had planned to spend the afternoon indoors; but it is possible that it is more hygienic in the garden. At all events, I will select a quiet place to sleep until there are further developments.'"

"When you command the dog to 'sit up,' the poor idiot thinks he has to do it. The average cat throws off, pretends to be stupid and not to understand what you want. He really understands you too well, but he sees 'nothing in it' for him. Why sit up?"

Your Good Health

Lots of Water Answer To Kidney Stones

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.
Dear Dr. Molner: Can kidney stones be retarded or prevented by diet or exercise? I have had two terrifying attacks but my doctor merely says, "Drink more water."

A recent physical disclosed no dormant stones. My work is sedentary, but I've been walking two miles a day, thinking the exercise might help.—R.J.J.

There are different kinds of stones which depend, at least in part, on whether the urine is naturally acid, alkaline or neutral. I point this out as an explanation of why there isn't any exact answer to today's question. Various possibilities are a disorder of the parathyroid glands, some connection with gout or any infection or other condition that impairs the flow from the kidneys. Regardless of what kind of stones may be involved and the fact drinking water may sound like too simple an answer, there is no more important thing a patient can do.

Whatever the stones are made of, they will grow more slowly if they grow at all when the fluids in the kidney are dilute rather than strong. And the exercise helps, too. It is not unusual for a person to have one or two bouts with kidney stones and then have no further trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: My eyes fog over and tear a lot. For three years, I have been using a nose spray, so I can breathe.—P.M.S.

This has all the classic signs of allergy. This might result from factors ranging from some cosmetic to chronic infection or possibly a disorder of the eye itself. Two or three sessions with your doctor may well solve the problem.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recovered from malnutrition a year ago. My eyes still look watery and unnatural. Have some tissues been destroyed permanently?—Miss R. S.

Most tissues recover quite readily from the ravages of undernourishment, but in severe cases a form of neuritis—a damage to the nerve network—may result because of vitamin deficiencies. Just be patient.

To P.V.: Nitroglycerin tablets give temporary relief for the heart when it is having certain types of trouble. You may continue taking such tablets as are necessary without fear of harm.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a brain wave?—N. E.

Tiny electric impulses are constantly occurring in the brain and can be detected and recorded by an electroencephalogram. These readings are useful in diagnosis of convulsions, suspected epilepsy, tumors or brain injury.

Note to J. H.: I don't know of any type of cataract that cannot be removed surgically at the appropriate time. Age is not important in such cases.

last week to refrain from the use of force.

Later, External Affairs Minister Green said the Canadian government does not admit Portugal's claim that its three enclaves on the west coast of India are an integral part of Portugal and therefore come under the North Atlantic alliance.

In London while ruling out any question of British military action against India, Foreign Secretary the Earl of Home told Parliament his government would honor its ancient treaties with Portugal by opposing India in the UN Security Council.

It was a touchy decision for Britain to take against India, largest nation in the Commonwealth. But Portugal is not only one of Britain's oldest the move through its veto power.

A few minutes earlier the council had defeated by a vote of four to seven an Afro-Asian resolution calling upon Portugal to "terminate hostile action and to co-operate with India in the liquidation of her colonial possession in India."

NO ACTION TAKEN

The outcome of the two votes was no action whatever was taken on Portugal's demand that the Security Council take action on India's invasion of its three small territories of the Indian sub-continent Monday.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said: "Tonight we are witnessing the first act of a drama that could end with the death of the United Nations." because the council had failed to take action against what he termed aggression under the UN charter.

A FAILURE

Stevenson said his delegation would consider the situation further but did not call for a special session of the 104-member General Assembly. He said the failure of the council to call for a simple ceasefire "is in these circumstances a failure of the United Nations."

ARABS JOIN REDS

The seven affirmative votes for the Western resolution were cast by the sponsors—the United States, Britain, France and Turkey, and three others—Nationalist China, Ecuador and Chile.

The United Arab Republic, Ceylon and Liberia joined the Soviet Union in the no vote.

UNBELIEVABLE

Stevenson said it could not be believed that a vast country such as India needed to use force against the tiny Portuguese territories. But he did pass judgment on the opposing claims of India and Portugal to the territories in question—Goa, Damao and Diu.

BRITAIN SHOCKED

Britain's Sir Patrick Dean said his country— "shocked and dismayed" by the Indian action—was torn between its Commonwealth links with India and its centuries-old friendship with Portugal.

But Britain deplored India's invasion without recourse to the UN for mediation. Dean said the problem must be solved by a cessation of hostilities, a withdrawal of intruding forces and negotiations between New Delhi and Lisbon.

LONDON (UPI) — Water from the River Jordan in the Holy Land will be used to christen Princess Margaret's newborn son, David Albert Charles, Viscount Linley, in the palace's music room today — where Queen Elizabeth's three children were christened.

Pilotless Plane Astray

CHICO, Calif. (UPI) — The little airplane that could fly by itself kept its whereabouts a secret last night. The plane, a Piper Tri-Pacer, owned by Ed Remington, soared off into the wild blue Sunday. It had to be out of gas yesterday, but just where it remained a mystery. Remington was cranking it by hand when the engine started with more gusto than he anticipated. The plane scooted across the airport and made a better takeoff than some piloted planes. It was last sighted east of Red Bluff. Remington's only consolation: the takeoff of his $10,000 plane was "a thing of beauty — like a graceful bird."

Negroes' Release Attained

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — Officials of this south Georgia city agreed yesterday to release 427 jailed Negro demonstrators in time for Christmas. The Negroes agreed to a 60-day halt in their anti-segregation demonstrations. In an agreement worked out by a bi-racial committee, city officials agreed to release the demonstrators on their own signatures. In New Orleans yesterday things were not so peaceful. 200 Negroes and a few white youths started to march through Christmas rush hour traffic in protest against the mass arrest of anti-segregation demonstrators in Baton Rouge last week. Police arrested them all. The march and the mass arrests caused a big traffic jam in downtown New Orleans.

NITEROI, Brazil (UPI) — A flash fire raced up the walls and roof of a circus tent Sunday, trapping 2,500 fear-crazed spectators — half of them children — in a shroud of flaming canvas. Police suspected arson.

Gov. Celso Pecanha of Rio de Janeiro State said 323 persons perished in the holocaust and 600 were injured. Firemen said "It was a miracle anyone got out alive." It was the worst circus fire since July 6, 1944, when 168 persons died in a blaze that swept the Ringling Bros. circus in Hartford, Conn.

CHILDREN TRAMPLED

Many children were trampled by the screaming crowd that tried to escape the fiery canvas as it collapsed on them. It was the main tent of the Circo Americano (American Circus). Pecanha urgently appealed to the nation to donate blood, medicine and ice to help treat the injured. Brazilian navy launches transported the overflow of victims from Niteroi hospitals across the two-mile bay to Rio de Janeiro.

MASS FUNERAL

Long lines of relatives formed outside hospitals and morgues during the night. State authorities called on volunteer carpenters to build caskets because they feared the bodies could cause a health hazard in the summer heat if they remained unburied. Many of the victims were buried in a mass funeral yesterday.

Off His Pedestal

THAT GREAT apostle of non-violence, Mr. Nehru, who tempers with the giant Red China on his borders but never fails to lecture the white Western nations on their behavior, has sent his troops into Goa and the other small Portuguese enclaves in India. He has done this in spite of British and American appeals not to use force, and apparently after receiving Soviet assurance of support for his action.

It was patent that sooner or later the Portuguese would have to bow before the pressures which are eroding Western colonies in Asiatic and African countries, but this armed intervention denies the Indian leader's oft-repeated arguments that international disputes are amenable to negotiation.

India claims Goa and the two other tiny Portuguese possessions on geographic and ethnic grounds, although the Portuguese have been there since before there was an India as it is now constituted, for four hundreds years in fact. Conceivably some of the Goans might not want to be "liberated," as the Soviet-style leaflets the Indians dropped in advance proclaimed.

The movement of troops followed the usual accusations of border incidents that present an excuse for such invasions, but the Portuguese would scarcely provoke the situation. Surrounded as they are by an alien nation they know they cannot hold out against force.

It would seem that Premier Nehru has bowed to the leftist elements in India who have been pressing for the use of arms to take over Goa, and in order to align himself with the African states to whom his policy of non-violence has no appeal. He has preferred to risk the displeasure of the West and also disregard the advice of the UN's secretary-general.

Undoubtedly Mr. Nehru could have achieved his aims by a little more patience; inevitably Portugal would have had to give way in light of modern reaction to colonialism. He has stepped off his pedestal of peace, however, thus reducing the influence that once was his.

It will be interesting to see if he is equally forthright when next his borders are threatened by Red China; the latter of course is a vastly powerful adversary compared to tiny Goa.

A Splendid Record

ALTHOUGH the rest of the province can really claim none of the credit, all of British Columbia will feel some family pride in the achievement of the city of Trail in going seven years without a traffic accident. This splendid record is the best for any North American city with a population of more than 10,000.

Family pride, however, may well be tempered with self-criticism, for Trail is showing what can be done has underlined the fact that other B.C. communities including Victoria are not doing it, or not nearly as well.

How has Trail succeeded? Luck certainly has played a part; accidents do happen sometimes which no amount of caution and foresight could avert. But the Trail record shows that much more than luck is involved.

For a city to go seven years without a traffic fatality is surely a mark of extraordinary community spirit, so strong a force of friendship and teamwork that it impels almost every citizen to take the responsibility of using the roads with care and with thought for others. As Prime Minister Diefenbaker remarked in a message of congratulation, the achievement is evidence of a fine community regard for traffic regulations and their purpose, the protection of human lives.

The larger and more populous the city, the less likely is there to be a pervasive community spirit of this kind. But Trail in comparison with other cities of its own size has shown that wonders can be done, and the conclusion must be drawn that if all community organizations and agencies were to join in striving for safety on the roads, Victoria could do wonders too.

Not Only the New

AMERICAN Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant's contention that the United Nations has been too lax in maintaining its qualifications for membership is likely to draw as much criticism as it does praise.

In an address to the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club, Mr. Merchant said that some of the newer sovereign nations had been accepted into membership before they were qualified to discharge the obligations which members of the world body were required to assume.

Many of the more recent members of the United Nations, he said, had been thrust onto a stage for which they were not fully prepared and were "inward looking peoples, preoccupied for years with the struggle to gain independence and not only undisturbed but often uninterested in problems and issues distant from their own countries."

The truth of this statement cannot be denied. Yet a fairer summation of the situation might have resulted if the distinguished diplomat had looked further afield before singling out the new member nations for reproach.

Had he done so he would have found that many of the older member countries, indeed even the founding nations themselves, have been equally guilty of failing to discharge their obligations toward the UN Charter.

The Charter declares that UN membership is open to all . . . peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the Charter and . . . are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

These obligations as listed in Article 1 of the Charter are to maintain international peace and security, to develop friendly relations among nations based on the principle of equal rights and the self-determination of peoples, to achieve international co-operation in solving economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems, to promote respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to be a centre for the harmonization of nations in the attainment of this common end.

These, in brief, are the obligations Mr. Merchant believes the newer nations of the UN are not yet ready to assume.

Nor, he might have added, are many of the older members.

"OK! SO WE KEEP 'EM ALL OUT — AND WE CLOSE DOWN THE UNDERGROUND AND THE BUSSES AND LET THE COUNTRY GO DIRTY AGAIN...."

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and scaling waz. . .
By TOM TAYLOR

I SEE the somewhat familiar refrain is being sung again about our travelling hockey teams, this time apropos a game between the Port Arthur Bearcats and a Czechoslovakia team. The Canadian players lived up too much to their club label.

They were bearcats on the ice. True, they skated well, and excelled in positional play, one newspaper said, but they "were rough and sometimes dirty."

Now of course according to our credo ice hockey is a vigorous game full of body contact. I do think myself the sticks are swung with too much abandon and officialdom is rather lax about this, but it can never be a nifty, penny game.

Its essence embraces brawn as well as skill.

Too much needn't be read into these complaints, therefore. One notes similar accusations of rough play against British soccer teams which meet European clubs in big-time contests.

The Europeans don't like the body charge or the stern tackle and shout loudly when they are bowled over.

This word "dirty" has several connotations, however. It doesn't necessarily connote some rough bruising tactic; it all depends on the interpretation.

Europeans have their own version of what a soccer opponent might in turn term "mean" or "dirty" play. They are guileful and cute about holding a man's jersey, for instance, or tapping his ankles when the referee isn't looking.

Or maybe, digging him in the ribs with a sharp elbow.

Now the British soccer stars could do that too, naturally; they don't climb the ladder of fame without learning all the tricks, if only for their own self-preservation.

If one essays to play soccer or ice hockey in senior competitive company one must acquire the capacity to withstand the rigors. There is a degree of survival of the fittest in first-class games where men clash against each other. There has to be.

But these complaints perhaps symbolize the differing philosophical outlooks of European and English-speaking players. The latter goes in more for the forthright surge of strength; the former prefers the sly restraints that are equally irritating.

You can take your pick and decide which is more "sporting."

One sideline worth noting in the Czech reports was the comment of one Prague newspaper that the Port Arthur chapter was "in very good physical condition." This is an accolade, because one standing merit of European games players is that invariably they themselves are in tip-top shape.

We hear so much nowadays about the physical unfitness of Canadian manhood it's pleasing to have this countered by a source feeling none too kindly at the moment towards our representatives.

That makes it all the more praiseworthy.

Washington Calling

Aloneness Accentuated

By MARQUIS CHILDS, from Helsinki

IN this prosperous era, Finland, wedged in between the two power blocs, when Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev came here on a state visit last September he stressed the importance of Finland signing the separate peace treaty with East Germany that Khrushchev intends to conclude.

The growing fear is that it will be impossible to resist the demand of Moscow when the time comes to sign on the dotted line.

Currently relations with the two Germans are resolved by a neat compromise. Finland sends both to Bonn and East Berlin a consul-general who heads a trade mission that is short of actual diplomatic recognition. Finland's trade with West Germany is sizeable while with East Germany it is insignificant.

Signing the treaty and recognizing East Germany would create great difficulties diplomatically and it might jeopardize Finland's exports of pulp and paper products to West Germany. Those exports have already been reduced under cartel agreements with the other Scandinavian countries because American sales of wood products in the world market has depressed prices. Finland's share of the cut is 400,000 tons a year and this coincides with the beginning of a slight turndown in the boom.

Add to this a system of proportional representation that rewards the discipline of the Communists in getting out every single vote in marked contrast with the Socialists, the Agrarians and the Conservatives. While the Communists have a fourth of the 200 seats they got only 23 per cent of the vote in 1958.

What makes this the more surprising is the strong gravitational pull that the West exerts on Finland despite the fixed and often ominous gaze of the Soviet Union just across the border. One explanation for the latest demand on Finland is this pull of the West, with 80 per cent of Finnish trade with the West and only 20 per cent with the Soviet Union and other Communist bloc countries.

The cohesive force of the European Common Market, and the promise it holds out of creating a powerful new entity knit together not only economically but politically, may explain much more than the Soviet rumble in the north of Europe.

It could be the principal reason for the whole effort to make sure that an atmosphere of crisis is maintained. If the pull toward unity and the creation of a power bloc at least equal to that of the United States and the U.S.S.R. can be interrupted, then the risks involved in a continuing crisis may be justified.

The Soviet concern is also related to the very real possibility that Germany will dominate this new focus of power. This is obviously what the Germans intend.

Kekkonen says that in his talk with Premier Khrushchev in Siberia last month the question of the European community and Finland's relation to it was never raised. That relationship is highly problematical and it can be resolved only after the status of Britain and the neutrals has been worked out.

If tariffs on paper and wood pulp, Finland's principal products in world trade, are reduced by Common Market action and the Finnish producers are not kept out of their established sales outlets, then the community would prove of great benefit to this small country.

But the relationship with Germany remains an unsolved bout in Finland's political life.

Between You and Me

Knotty Problem

By MARGARET AITKEN, MP

NINETEEN sixty-one has been a year of considerable labor unrest. But one of the most unusual union disagreements is taking place in Hollywood.

It is a complex thing called "runaway productions." More and more the film industry is making American movies in foreign countries. Last year, out of 387 films distributed in the United States, only 154 were made on this side of the Atlantic.

The trend toward making American films in foreign parts started innocently enough. It was not for the purpose of escaping taxes or hiring cheaper labor but to use up blocked currencies.

After the war many countries would not allow foreign earned or owned money out of their countries. This affected the film industry especially. In Britain, for instance, U.S. films were good money-makers.

James Nairn, head of public relations for Famous Players, told me the first producer to make a film in Britain was Walt Disney. His primary concern was to use up some of the money he could not take out of the United Kingdom. He produced "Treasure Island" which was a smashing success all over the world and it was made much more cheaply in Britain than it would have been made in Hollywood.

That was the beginning of foreign-made American films.

Foreign countries have been more than co-operative in encouraging U.S. producers—lower taxes, cheaper labor, even subsidies. Mr. Nairn says Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia went about as far as he could go. He rented out his entire army to any producer who needed soldiers.

Now can the unions stop this trend away from Hollywood? One way of course, would be to lower the costs of U.S. production, but that does not seem to have occurred to them. Instead, they think the government should lower taxes for those producers and actors who stay home. They also want the government to insist that all foreign-made films must be clearly labelled in the screen credit.

And their final, perhaps strongest weapon could be a propaganda campaign signifying that runaway productions are doing individual research on what effect these foreign-produced American films have on unemployment. You will be hearing more of this knotty problem.

Report From Ottawa

Important Reform

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

IF Prime Minister Diefenbaker is successful in having Parliament set up an "independent commission" to adjust the boundaries of federal constituencies after each decennial census, he will have chafed up to his credit an important measure of parliamentary reform. In few areas have reforms been demanded as long, as loudly and as unsuccessfully by as many as in this one.

The British North America Act contains the requirement that the House of Commons seats be redistributed after each census (such a census was taken earlier this year). In theory, at least, the intent is to provide better representation in national elections by redrawing the electoral map to bring it into line with population shifts that have occurred during the previous decade.

The theory, unfortunately, has borne remarkably little resemblance to the fact under a traditional system by which Parliament has handled its own redistribution chore.

When redistribution time rolls around, the House of Commons isn't itself. Order, regularity, reason, sweet harmony and the music of the spheres vanish, leaving no trace.

The redistribution process has been a battle royal, a donnybrook, in which no holds are barred and no quarter is asked or given. Party advantage becomes all important.

Every party seeks to redraw the constituency boundaries in such a way as to enable it to elect more MPs to the next election. At such times, even the most mild-mannered MP thinks of little but doing as much damage as possible to the cause of his political adversaries, while protecting himself and his party in the clinches, as best he can. And there's plenty of clinching.

Trickery and chicanery are the order of the day. There's plenty of backroom bargaining in which, on occasion, loyal party supporters have been known to agree to changes unwelcome to one or more of their colleagues, in return for concessions in their home ridings.

Government parties having secure Commons majorities behind them, have an immense advantage in this kind of political warfare. They can adjust constituency boundaries to suit themselves.

Government parties, of whatever political stripe, have tended to accept the proposition that the only bad gerrymander is one which is unsuccessful or which has been bungled so clumsily that public opinion is aroused.

Opposition parties, on the other hand, have been protected only by their own guile and their ability to turn a blatant gerrymander into a campaign issue. Sometimes, government majorities have tended to overreach themselves.

Senator C. G. Power, former minister of national defence for air and an experienced and respected parliamentarian, once described the redistribution process as "an unseemly, undignified and utterly confusing scramble for personal or political advantage."

Professor Norman Ward, in his "The Canadian House of Commons," wrote fairly that redistribution debates "reveal the Commons at its worst."

"Happily," Professor Ward added thoughtfully, "these peculiar interests and passions are aroused only every 10 years and the redistribution disputes are really misleading as an indication of how the Commons ordinarily pursues its affairs."

When did Parliament's handling of redistribution reach an all-time low? Opinions differ. Some authorities are inclined, however, to put it at the top, or the bottom, of the great Canadian gerrymander of 1952. There are plenty of other candidates. The redistribution of 1924 and 1932 came complete with term maps, charges, accusations and challenges to mortal combat.

The last redistribution, in 1952, was described by the Conservatives as a "bare-faced gerrymander," "political butchery with a cleaver" and "attempts assassination of distinguished Conservative members."

That was the year, it may be recalled, when a Mr. John G. Diefenbaker, Conservative MP for Lake Centre, was dismayed to find that his riding had been redesigned from top to bottom and amalgamated with one held by a Mr. Ross Thatcher, then a CCF MP for Moose Jaw.

Mr. Diefenbaker's new "independent commission" proposal isn't a new one. Britain and other Commonwealth countries use this device and have found it a vast improvement.

Canada almost got such a commission at the turn of the century. The Commons passed measures containing provision for such a commission in 1899 and again in 1900. But these draft bills were rejected by the Senate. In 1940, the King government drafted a similar measure but decided not to proceed with it. As late as 1947, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said that he favored such a scheme. But when the CCF introduced a measure along these lines, its defeat was contrived in a vote which divided on non-party lines.

This time, however, passage of the reform legislation seems certain. The Liberal and CCF-NDP MPs are scarcely likely to venture to oppose it. And even the Senate might well decide that this isn't a battlefield to its liking.

Europe and Space

Helpful Timing

By REMBERT JAMES

EUROPE is getting into the space business, and just at the right time to offer important help on a problem that has been puzzling American engineers and scientists.

This problem has been to find trained people and facilities to launch the large number of navigation, communication, meteorology and other operational satellites that will be required in the next few years to achieve the Western world's scientific goals.

It appears now that Europeans will launch them from bases as widely separated as France, the Sahara, Australia, Scandinavia and possibly Greenland.

This is developing as a reasonably likely prospect as a result of recent meetings to lay the foundation for a proposed European Space Research Organization. It calls for an eight-year program supported by 11 nations. The plans show that Europe has a potential future in space research less than that of the U.S. or Russia in magnitude, but still well worth noting in any assessment of future developments.

The European group plans first to set up a data centre and space technology centre. Then it will go about its program for launchings.

It will use existing rocket ranges wherever possible, such as those operated by the French at Hammaguir in the Sahara desert, and by the Australians at Woomera, in the Australian desert.

A northern firing range will be established, probably at Kiruna, in northern Sweden. Other ranges may be set up in Greenland, and along the Bay of Biscay coast south of Bordeaux, France.

Although much of its program will be pointed toward strictly scientific objectives, such as deep probes of space and orbiting of the moon, it appears there will be more than enough rockets and trained men to carry out non-scientific work, too.

This is where the program will be of most help to the U.S. The Europeans, up to now, have indicated little interest in designing and producing communication, navigation and other operational satellites. The U.S. has scores of projects of exactly this type.

Defacing It

As a comparatively new arrival in Victoria from England, having resided here for only six years, I am hesitant to make any criticism which would cast a derogatory shadow on our fair city. However, having lived in every corner of the globe, I would venture to suggest that Vancouver Island is undoubtedly the loveliest and most pleasant place in the world in which one could hope to live. This is achieved only by dint of the gifts that nature so kindly bestowed, but regrettably I feel that man is slowly spoiling this golden heritage by defacing rather than improving what should and could be a model and Utopian city.

This tedious cliché that "Victoria is like a little bit of old England" is so far from the truth that it has now become a crashing bore and a joke in bad taste. What has happened is that instead of taking the good points of both England and the United States, the reverse policy seems to have been adopted, and to my mind Victoria has now become an architectural monstrosity covered over all with flashing neon signs, power poles, overhead wires, transformers, etc.

Another of the many objections I would like to register is regarding an extraordinary desire that exists for changing what is old, pleasant and attractive for something garish, ugly and cheap. For instance, why, at enormous expense, do we have to have a new city hall, new court house, line tiles in the Parliament Buildings, etc. The new court house looks like a cheap copy of Aldershot barracks.

Worse Than Death

I see the VOW and others are still condemning Rev. William Hills for his views expressed to the Women's Canadian Club and on other occasions too. Surely the correspondents should realize if they read the papers and listen to the radio that we of the Western free countries do negotiate—are always ready to, but we must be strongly united in defence, to deter attack and back up our proposals. We cannot make concessions demanded by the U.S.S.R. which is out to enslave the world. To surrender would be a fate worse than death.

Heartening

Any man who is as well educated and as deeply concerned with the problems and perils of his fellow man as Rev. William Hills is, will surely continue to be quoted out of context, misunderstood and/or criticized for his courage to speak out. He is, I should imagine, accustomed to this.

But isn't it heartening that a few of our informed citizens can and do speak out? There may be hope for us yet.

Labor Groups Split Over Jobless Fund

OTTAWA (CP)—Two major labor bodies Monday advocated universal application of unemployment insurance to wage earners but differed on methods of financing.

The 1,070,000-member Canadian Labor Congress suggested the federal government increase its contributions to the unemployment insurance fund to one-third from the present one-sixth with employers and employees sharing the rest equally.

The 95,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions, central body of the labor movement in Quebec, proposed a special tax on all income similar to taxes now used to finance old age pensions.

The two labor groups appeared before a committee inquiring into how to save the unemployment insurance fund from bankruptcy and how to end abuses of the fund.

The blaze burned out two two-storey buildings, including Leonard's Cafe and the Arctic Club, causing an estimated $400,000 damage.

Christmas Trip Ends in Death For Father, Son

VANCOUVER (CP)—A father and his son, on their way to deliver Christmas presents to relatives, were killed Sunday when the roof of their car was sliced off by a giant transport truck in New Westminster.

Hector Sanderson, 65, and son Edwin, 35, were among seven persons killed in weekend B.C. highway accidents. Ray Walbridge, 76, of Hammond, was killed in North Vancouver when the brakes slipped and his truck pinned him against a shed while he was unloading a stove.

Gustav Klann of Surrey was killed in Vancouver as he directed traffic around his car after it veered into a ditch. He held a flashlight when he was struck by a car which had collided with his car.

Handel's 'Messiah' Delights Audience

By BERT BINNY

One of the world's greatest sacred compositions, sung in the most desirable and advantageous surroundings by excellent solo and choral voices, was offered to the Victoria public last night.

The public took full advantage of the offer, filling every part of Christ Church Cathedral to hear Handel's "Messiah" performed by the Victoria Choral Society.

Four of Victoria's finest soloists joined the chorus for this presentation: soprano Anne Harris, contralto Eleanor Ashford, tenor Peter Yelland, and bass Stanley Martin.

"Messiah," though written in just over three weeks, is a lengthy composition. No fewer than 53 items were presented yesterday with Parts II and III abridged. It never lost interest for the audience in last night's exquisite performance.

The conductor was Rodney Webster and the organist was Richard Proudman.

This was another Christmas presentation in which the participants and all Victoria can take pride.

Seal Total

Tops $19,000

Officials of the Victoria Christmas Seal campaign reported a total of $19,271 received by yesterday.

Mrs. J. U. Kimmitt, in charge of the Christmas Seal office, said the response this year has been "very good indeed."

Dyeing Jail Guard Keeps His Locks

Just Like Christmas

Toy Auction Busiest Ever

It was like Christmas at Maynard's Auction Rooms last night.

Paper littered the floor, youngsters were playing with some of the thousands of toys recently sold, the auctioneers had shouted themselves hoarse.

RICHES BY $401

And the Colonist 500 Fund was enriched by $401 as almost 400 happy patrons trooped home with almost 3,000 toys.

The 500 Fund auction, staged annually by Maynard's for the past six years, was the busiest in the history of the fund. As in years past, every penny paid for the toys will be added to the flood of donations now pouring into the fund.

Auctioneers Dan Bradley and Bill Ralphs handled the selling chores—as for the first time in six years—youthful auctioneer Skooke Roberts found himself unable to leave his studies in Vancouver.

MOTHER'S CHORE

Young Roberts took on the assignment when he was only 13 and had handled it every year up to the present.

His mother, Mrs. A. R. Roberts, opened the auction.

Buying was brisk and prices were surprisingly high. Colonist carriers, wearing cash-and-carry change aprons, rushed parcels to their new owners.

Manager of the auction rooms, Roy Ashworth made special note of the work done by firemen this year in giving older toys a new lease on life. He expressed special thanks to the Yates Street firehall and the Saanich fire department. Various clubs and service organizations had been particularly co-operative this year, he said.

Fulton Urges Bennett:

Check Our Policy On Columbia Again

VANCOUVER (CP)—Justice Minister Fulton said last night the federal government has asked Premier Bennett to re-examine the federal government's policy for Columbia River development.

He reiterated Ottawa will not permit the outright cash sale on a long-term basis of B.C.'s share of downstream benefits.

"We cannot leave this province to get along with more expensive power than that which we would make available to our competitors by an outright sale," he said.

The object of the federal power resources policy was to ensure Canada a supply of cheap power to maximize industrial potential and meet foreseeable domestic needs.

"No Canadian government, past or present, has ever been so senseless as to leave this country with what somebody in this province has been pleased to call an 'unmanageable surplus,'" he said.

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Power Corp. shareholders voted overwhelmingly Monday in favor of capital distribution of $87,890,000 and against selling their shares to the B.C. government.

At a special general meeting, they favored a general distribution of $18.70 a share by 99.4 per cent and turned down by 98.3 per cent a resolution to accept the government's offer of $38 each for B.C. Power shares.

Purdy to Join UBC Faculty

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Harry L. Purdy, who quit earlier this month as vice-president of the B.C. Electric Co., will join the faculty of UBC next year, it was learned Monday.

Laos Parley Seen As Future Model

Fuel Sale To China Snubs U.S.

LONDON (CP) — The British government was reported yesterday to have approved the sale of aviation fuel to Communist China despite stiff U.S. opposition.

The Daily Mail said a contract is being negotiated for Britain to supply kerosene fuel and lubricating oil for the British Viscount prop-jet airliners already ordered by the Chinese government.

The United States also opposed the sale of the planes to the Communists.

GENEVA (Reuters)—The Soviet delegate to the 14-nation conference on Laos yesterday pronounced the work of the assembly "basically concluded."

Russia's Georgi Pushkin, co-chairman of the conference with Britain, said the accord hammered out here "should serve as a model for international agreements of this type."

The 14-nation conference approved a draft declaration on Laotian neutrality, a protocol containing international supervision and control measures for safeguarding it.

The conference also approved an appeal to the three leaders of Laotian factions—pro-West, neutralist and pro-Communist—to quickly form a coalition government and send a united delegation here.

The U.S., Russia, Britain, France and Communist China will each bear 17.6 per cent of the total cost.

Lawyer Asks Church To Pinpoint Heaven

SAN FRANCISCO—Lawyer Vincent Hallinan challenges authority of the Roman Catholic Church "to act as an agent of God on earth" in a suit to set aside a will bequeathing $200,000 to 33 Catholic institutions.

Hallinan, who was born a Roman Catholic but who left the church, said his Superior Court suit contesting the will of the late David F. Supple asks the church in effect to "pinpoint the exact location of heaven, hell and purgatory."

Supple, who died last

August at 81, left most of his estate to church schools and charities and nothing to his grandnephew, John C. Smith, 43, of Corte Madera, Calif.

NEW YORK—Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov says building U.S. nuclear fallout shelters is "absolutely useless" because Russian super-bombs would destroy everything for hundreds of miles around the centre of a blast.

PALM BEACH, Fla.—President Kennedy, suffering from "a heavy cold," stopped in Palm Beach yesterday instead of returning to Washington from his weekend trip to Latin America.

JERUSALEM, Israel—Advertisements urging that Adolf Eichmann not be buried in Israel appeared in local newspapers. They were paid for by Dr. Nahman Kirschner, a Jerusalem physician, who said Eichmann's body would contaminate the nation's soil. Eichmann has appealed against his death sentence.

WINNIPEG—Jack Blumberg, Socialist elder statesman of Winnipeg municipal politics, died here at the age of 65. Death was due to leukemia.

TORONTO—An estate totaling $959,056 was left by Mrs. Doris Margaret Sifton of Toronto, who died earlier this year. Beneficiaries are her husband, Clifford, and son, Michael, both of Toronto, and her daughter, Elizabeth Anne Smith of Winona, Ont.

OTTAWA—New Zealand's deputy prime minister, J. R. Marshall, arrived here for talks with Canadian leaders that were expected largely to concern British efforts to enter the European Common Market.

BUDAPEST, Hungary—Bela Huzska, 46-year-old bookkeeper, was sentenced to six years in prison. The court was told he became engaged to 25 women in succession, and coaxed sums totalling $50,000 from them.

TORONTO—Benjamin Kirie, who spent 46 years as a missionary in China, died in his Toronto home at 102.

Jacques Soustelle, arch-enemy of President de Gaulle's Algeria policy, slipped back to Paris yesterday after seven months of exile. He called for a national reconciliation of minds.

Note Unacceptable U.S. Tells Kremlin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has sent back as "unacceptable" a Soviet note demanding that West German Gen. Adolf Heusinger, a top NATO official, be handed over for a Nazi "war crimes" trial.

Announcing the rare diplomatic step, the state department said the note was returned to the Kremlin by U.S. embassy officials.

U.S. Infantry Defies Reds By Moving

BERLIN (AP)—Another U.S. infantry company rolled westward along the autobahn (highway) from isolated West Berlin yesterday, defying a new Communist demand that troop movements along the highway stop.

The company, moving in three groups, was cleared without a hitch by Soviet control officers. The vehicles were headed along the 110 miles of highway to West Germany.

UNIT TO RETURN

The unit will spend four days in West Germany on field training, the army said. Then it will return to East Berlin.

The move began less than 36 hours after the Communist regime of East Germany demanded in a formal note the U.S. stop sending army units along the autobahn.

Export Licences Granted to BCE

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight Canadian power companies have been granted licences to export surplus electricity, Trade Minister Hees announced Monday. The announcement said 16 licences, issued by the National Energy Board, are involved. INTERMITTIBLE—Most of the exports will be of interruptible electricity—power that can be cut off at the discretion of the exporting company.

The licences permit export of about 8,052,000,000 kilowatt hours of interruptible energy, about one-third of which is to be transmitted through the United States and back to Canada for consumption.

TWO FOR BCE

British Columbia Electric got approval for two licences, one for one megawatt of firm power and up to 2,500,000 kilowatt hours a year for five years, another for 1,500,000,000

OTTAWA (UPI)—The usual pre-election Santa Claus budget, complete with tax cuts and lavish handouts, is to be conspicuous by its absence from the coming parliamentary session.

That is the latest sobering word to filter down to rank-and-file government MPs from top Conservative circles. Prime Minister Diefenbaker's latest, and presumably final, political time-table is said to defer the coming year's budget until after the general election has been held. It is now widely expected not later than April.

UN Bonds To Repay Canada?

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada may be able to get some United Nations payments due this country if the UN adopts the idea of floating UN bonds, External Affairs Minister Green said yesterday.

He was asked to elaborate on Canada's decision to co-sponsor a resolution—proposed by the UN's budgetary committee—to issue $200,000,000 worth of bonds for sale to governments, national banks and non-profit-making organizations.

Gordon Head Told

A Gordon Head group will have to ante up about $2,500 to get the old Gordon Head School for use as a community hall.

Saanich officials said last night it will cost that much in renovations to bring the building up to standard.

The request came from the Gordon Head Mutual Improvement Society.

Oak Bay council last night approved a request for an Anglican church to place three signs on municipal land.

Coun. F. A. Robinson said there were too many signs in Oak Bay already. He conceded another church has a sign but said the new bid should be limited to one sign.

Coun. Allan Cox replied there were two main approaches to this church.

People decorating their homes were advised last night by an irate Victoria woman to place their decorations on the roof.

Peggy Dale, 1141 Hamilton Road, came home from entertaining an old-age pensioners' group to find 15 light bulbs gone from a wreath on the garage door.

Grateful for assistance given but no longer in need is the family of Petty Officer Raymond S. Good whose home at 1274 Denman was gutted by fire Dec. 9.

Shipmates donated $515 and a grateful PO Good yesterday said generous donors "should now consider other more needy people in the city."

A charge of failing to stop for an emergency vehicle was dismissed by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court yesterday.

He agreed with defence counsel E. A. Popham, appearing for Alexander Craib, 103 Bushby, the information "failed to disclose any offence." The charge followed a collision between a car and a fire truck at Yates and Cook Nov. 14.

A gift-wrapped parcel in a lane running between Beach Drive and Lincoln Road has been turned in at Oak Bay police station.

A sailor who gave a shipmate's name when the car he was driving was stopped by Esquimalt police was told he was lucky to escape more serious charges.

Michael Kattler, HMCS Antigonish, was fined $35 for allowing an unlicensed minor to drive his car.

A charge against Douglas Watt, serving aboard the same ship, was withdrawn and the magistrate told Kattler: "It is an offence to give false information to police. It is also an offence to cause other persons to be suspected of an offence."

Black Ball Return Fare

Boosted in Policy Move

NANAIMO—Return fare on the Horseshoe Bay-Nanaimo run has been increased to $4 from $3.60 since the B.C. government took over the Black Ball ferry system. Officials said the move puts the system in line with other government-run ferries and was planned by the private owners before Black Ball was taken over.

Removal of the five per cent sales tax on books was unanimously demanded by Victoria and Islands branch, Canadian Authors' Association, at its annual Christmas banquet meeting.

A Saanich man who claimed he was blinded by oncoming headlights, seconds before he hit a parked car was fined $40 in Esquimalt police court yesterday.

"Why didn't you stop?" asked Magistrate William Ostler when Robert Ferguson, 4131 Hawkes, said he could not see a parked car on Tillam Road.

Forty-five teachers of Grade 8 mathematics in Greater Victoria schools will take a 16-week course starting in January on new teaching advances.

Assistant district superintendent Joseph Chell said last night the new Grade 8 math course to be introduced in September, 1962, contains a new vocabulary and "entirely new thinking."

Hunting Death Father's Fault

COURTENAY—A coroner's jury ruled Monday the shooting of an elderly man by an 11-year-old boy was accidental but due to the negligence of an indulgent father.

Jurors were inquiring into the death of Murdoch Mac-

Donald, 70, while he was picking Christmas greenery in the forest near his home at Buckley Bay.

The boy said he fired with his 12-gauge shotgun at what he thought was a deer and then found Mr. MacDonald shot in the back.

A deer was about 50 feet from the boy and Mr. MacDonald was about 70 feet beyond that.

The father told the jury he was hunting with his three sons, aged 15, 11 and 6. He and the oldest boy carried .30-30 calibre rifles and the 11-year-old a shotgun. The youngest boy carried no weapon.

The jury said the father was negligent in allowing the boy to carry a firearm and recommended that adults who take minors hunting should be responsible for their infractions of the game act and subject to penalty.

Traffic Death Inquests Called

Inquests into two traffic deaths in the area during Saturday's storm will be held by coroner Dr. J. H. Moore.

First will concern the death of Low Yen, 74, of 670 Herald, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital some hours after being struck by a car on Herald near Douglas about 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

This inquest will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Sands funeral home.

HIT BY CAR
He suffered multiple injuries when hit by a car driven by D. S. Mitchell, 10467 All Bay, RCMP investigating the accident said the street lights were out at the time due to a power failure, and that the victim wore dark clothing.

Witnesses to the accident involving the elderly Chinese said the car was in darkness because a lamp standard was not working. Both mishaps occurred during Saturday's wind storm.

NO SURVIVORS
Driver of the car was identified as Chan Gin Non, 1658 Pearl. The elderly man had no known survivors.

Mr. Webb was a native of Suffolk, England, and a resident of Sidney for the last 15 years.

Immigrants Take Oath Thursday

Dr. W. G. Black, of the Vancouver office of the citizenship and immigration branch, will welcome 21 new Canadians when they take their oath of allegiance at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Judge J. B. Clearhouse will administer the oath in a ceremony at the Victoria courthouse.

After the ceremony, the new Canadians and members of the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council will have a coffee party in Eaton's restaurant.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Sailor's Leave in Balance

A probation report will probably determine whether an 18-year-old sailor spends his Christmas leave behind bars.

"I'm not sure you'll be permitted to go (home) to Winnipeg," Magistrate William Ostler told Bryan Dorratt, of HMCS Fraser, charged with possession of a spring knife and being intoxicated in a public place.

Dorratt was arrested early Saturday in a downtown alley. He later pleaded guilty to the offense and was remanded to Friday pending a probation report.

He appeared in court yesterday to ask if the remand date could be set ahead, as he wanted to catch a ride to Winnipeg.

"You are the author of your own misfortune," the magistrate told him. Dorratt was returned to custody to wait the probation report and sentence.

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1961

What Takes Mail So Long?

Why does it take longer for mail to come from Vancouver than it used to?

Union official Victor Midgley thinks there's a shortage of staff at the Vancouver post office.

Victoria postmaster Allan Davies says it's a transportation problem between the two cities.

Mr. Midgley, international representative of the carpenters' union, said he would ask for an inquiry by the postmaster-general in Ottawa.

He will bring the matter before the Victoria Labor Council in hopes it will be passed on to the Canadian Labor Congress and thence to Ottawa.

Mail from New York City and Washington, D.C., is received in Victoria faster than mail from downtown Vancouver, said the union official, who contends the Vancouver post office has "not enough people to handle the volume."

He said: "They should hire more help at $1 an hour, especially at Christmas time to alleviate the rush."

Postmaster Davies said delivery was hampered when the midnight ferry to Victoria was discontinued some time ago, and reduction in the number of flights when Trans-Canada Air Lines put larger aircraft in service brought a closing time of 9 p.m. for Vancouver-Victoria mails and 9:35 p.m. closing here.

Gales Leave Behind $2,000 Roofing Bill

Saturday's gusty gale ripped roofs from two city buildings, causing $2,000 damage.

A recently completed bar and gravel roof on Macdonald Park which cost $14,000 was destroyed in the storm, "whipped off like a flag," parks administrator Herbert Warren told a meeting of city parks committee yesterday.

The damage was covered by insurance but the committee decided to spend another $1,500 to cover the shiplap ceiling with plywood.

Cracks in the shiplap ceiling were blamed for the damage, Roderick Clark, in charge of the city's building department, said gusts lifted the heavy roof when winds got through the cracks.

Other damage suffered by city buildings included roofing rolls and flashing ripped from the Garbally Yard building and two windows smashed in the city hall clock tower.

The city's free loop bus service between city hall and the city polling station during Thursday's election carried 1,669 passengers.

Oak Bay Holds Back Wants Plans First

Wilson Meets Scurrah

Mayor Percy Scurrah conferred with mayor-elect R. B. Wilson yesterday to arrange for a conference at 10:30 this morning.

"I don't know what he wants to ask me, but I am ready to give him every assistance I possibly can," Mayor Scurrah said.

A request from Mayor Percy Scurrah for $7,000 from Oak Bay to support the city's centennial observance was tabled by Oak Bay council last night to await a list of projects being drawn up by the centennial committee.

Coun. Fred Hawes said last night representatives of the municipalities felt they would like to support the city in a permanent construction project of some type rather than underwrite centennial activities.

He said the original idea was for municipalities to underwrite shows and special attractions brought to town for the centennial. "If an attraction is a success it will pay for itself, but should the show be rained out there would be money to pay for it."

COMMON POT

"I don't think throwing dollars into a common pot is a good idea," said Coun. Allan Cox. "There should be something more."

Coun. F. A. Robinson pointed out three choices open: to present the city with a cash gift, to enter a joint project with the other municipalities, or to underwrite some centennial activities.

LETTER POINTS OUT The letter to council pointed out Victoria has already appropriated $25,000 this year and is including $50,000 in the provisional budget for 1962.

Suggested contribution for Saanich is $18,068 and $4,928 for Esquimalt.

CELEBRATIONS

All celebrations will be available to the people of Greater Victoria, and the committee feels they will wish to contribute toward the cost, the letter added. Unused funds would be returned with an accounting.

Saanich Advice

Take a Stand On Breakwater

The Corporation of Saanich may get its feet wet on the issue of whether a breakwater should be constructed at Cadboro Bay.

Incoming council will be given a nudge in that direction by the parks and recreation committee, which last night called for a stand to be taken.

Reeve George Chatterton brought up the subject during a brief discussion on development of Cadboro Bay Park. A breakwater is mooted by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and opposed by the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association, he said.

"I think 'Saanich council should have more say than any other group,' said Reeve Chatterton.

REQUEST REPORT

His plan, approved by the committee, was for incoming council to consider recommendations of both groups, request a report from the Capital Region Planning Board and thereafter submit council's recommendations to the minister of public works.

New Zealand Ship Coming

New Zealand is planning to send a navy ship to Victoria during centennial celebrations next year, Mayor Scurrah said yesterday.

Toy Bidders Build 500 Fund

Auctioneer Dan Bradley rings in bids at 500 Fund toy auction at Maynard's Auction Rooms last night. More than 400 people turned out to bid on toys.

Half buried under night's loot is Gordon Cadwell, 746 Kings, who was among busiest bidders at Maynard's Auction Rooms. More than 3,000 toys were sold to help Colonist help city's neediest families.

Arena Rocks Eyed As Parking Area

Possibility of levelling the top of rock behind Memorial Arena and building a parking facility on it was discussed at city hall yesterday.

The discussion took place during a meeting between the city arena committee and Memorial Arena commission. Representatives of Victoria Curling Club were expected to attend but did not appear.

Curling club officials have approached city hall to purchase most of the land between the curling club building and Memorial Arena to allow a planned, $1,000,000 expansion program.

Yesterday's meeting was to discuss if it is desirable for the city to sell the land—which has been earmarked for off-street parking for arena patrons—and, if it is desirable, how it can be done.

Estimated cost of blasting but a huge outcrop of rock to allow use of the land for arena parking is $100,000.

The new plan would involve blasting the top of the rock flat and building over it. The meeting decided to seek estimates of what this new plan would cost.

No decision was made on the desirability of selling the land to Victoria Curling Club.

Pensioners Meet

Old-Age Pensioners Organization, Saanich branch 55, will meet at 1:30 p.m. Friday in St. Mark's parish hall. Officials have asked each member to bring a friend.

No Excuses Allowed

Every Child Must Take School Survival Training

All children attending local public schools will take part in survival training. Greater Victoria school board decreed last night.

School board chairman W. C. Gelling said no child will be excused on the strength of a letter from parents.

'Adult Education Is Local Affair'

Trustees in Greater Victoria last night, expressed concern at proposals being made by the provincial government into the field of adult education.

School board chairman W. C. Gelling said responsibility for adult education must rest with local school boards.

First, he said, local boards exist throughout populated Canada. And, second, the boards already have the classrooms and other facilities for adult classes held outside normal school hours.

Trustee Richard Reeve said if the provincial government is going into the "education or whatever they call it" of unemployed persons, it should take over the entire adult education field.

Mr. Gelling said that if the government continued to make inroads in the existing system "all agencies" operating adult education classes would suffer.

He added: "I don't believe anyone can truthfully say such a program would serve no useful purpose."

A program report on setting up of the program was given by district school superintendent John Gough.

LITTLE DONE

So far, Mr. Gough said, little had been done in the way of actual drills. School officials and the civil defence authorities are still picking the safest places of shelter.

The superintendent said: "It's all still in the exploratory stage."

"Rest assured that this will take place in a manner to cause the least possible objections, even from conscientious objectors."

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My wife devotes 100 per cent of her energy and time to our two teen-age daughters. She's so busy sewing for them that when I need a button on a shirt she hands me a needle and says "Sew it on yourself."

The girls rule our lives. My wife cooks what they like, we drive the kind of car they want, and we vacation at the places they select. I'm well aware that the male hasn't been the head of the house in America for quite some time, but at least in some families they pretend that he has a little authority.

One woman bossing me around I could take—but not three. Perhaps I'd be happier alone—especially now that the mulling, drooling teen-age boys are beginning to hang around. What do you think?—TURN-ING WORM.

Dear Worm: I think you tipped your mitt in that line about the teen-age boys.

You are insecure and emotionally immature. A well-adjusted husband doesn't compete with his children for their mother's attention as you have been doing for years. And now you're jealous of the teen-age boys and you view them as competition, too.

Our Dresses Are Dull She Says

Toronto Telegram News Service

North American women are a drab bunch, according to a little Polish miss on her first visit here.

She's Maria Barnik, 25, the young wardrobe director of the Mazowze Polish Folk Song and Dance Company touring North America.

She can't get over the dullness and uniformity of the clothes North American women wear.

It isn't that North Americans dress more poorly than Polish women, she explains through an interpreter. It's just that you have a much greater selection of designs and materials here than in Poland, yet don't take advantage of this.

NOT GOOD

"In relation to the possibilities you have, she says, your taste isn't good. You should wear more bright, gay colors like we do."

Maria looks more like a member of the dancing company than its wardrobe supervisor.

And in fact she joined the company school as a dancer at age 13. However, she was too short to remain a dancer (most of the girls in the show are tall) and directed her interests toward the costume department.

Now she studies Polish history and folklore and travels the Polish provinces in search of authentic peasant dress for the dancers and singers.

The peasants sew the costumes for the company of hand-woven material, many of them trimmed with intricate embroidery, applique and lace. There are 1,000 costumes for Maria to keep track of. Many of them weigh 24 pounds, a large weight for a dancer to twirl with.

Maria likes North America—she's been touring here for 10 weeks—but is anxious to return to her native Poland.

WILL MARRY

For in the spring she will marry Zdzislaw Bartczak, one of the dancers in the company. Then they will tour like 12 other couples in the company as man and wife.

Maria didn't buy any of our "drab" clothing. Instead, she and her fiancé bought a second-hand small foreign car and had it shipped back to Poland to await their return.

Leaving home is no solution, Sonny. See a head-doctor.

Dear Ann Landers: My fiancé is a wonderful guy—thoughtful, kind and generous. But somehow he thinks a small, superficial details (as he calls them) are unimportant. He has given me many lovely gifts but nothing is ever wrapped or even offered in a box.

Last Christmas he handed me a strand of pearls which he carried in a business envelope. Even my engagement ring came straight out of his pocket. When I asked him for the box he said he threw it away.

Don't you feel that with a little effort he could correct this fault?—SWEETIE PIE.

Dear Sweetie: You're off base a country mile. A girl who asks "where's the box" when she gets an engagement ring is paying too much attention to hair-splitting details.

One of the loveliest and most meaningful gifts I ever received came wrapped in—believe it or not, the Chicago Tribune—so help me! And I loved it anyway.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were invited to a family get-together. It was to be a buffet dinner and everyone was asked to bring something. Just as I was putting the last batch of fried chicken into the basket the doorbell rang. Some friends who live about 30 miles from here dropped in to see us.

I phoned my sister and asked if we could bring this couple and their three children. I even offered to provide extra food for them since I had plenty. She said in a cool voice, "No, it is not all right. This is a family party."

I got mad and slammed down the receiver. We did not go. The whole family is mad at me, including my husband. I say my sister was unspeakably rude. What's your opinion?—OUTS.

Dear Outs: You were wrong to put the dropper-inners ahead of the planned family party. And you should not have tried to drag them along.

People shouldn't allow themselves to be victimized by anyone who knows how to ring a doorbell. You should have said "I'm sorry but we have a previous commitment," and gone on your way.

London-Line

Broad-Shouldered Men Restored to Fashion

LONDON — The British Menswear Guild presented a striking selection of men's fashions, to launch the London-line for 1962. Although variations in styles are more subtle than in the women's fashion field, there were several marked changes to please athletic men.

The new line has been called "The Shape" and does just that—gives men back their shape!

The athletic, manly figure with bold chest and shoulders is back with us, jackets are more waisted and the straight

"tube" look has gone. Jackets have slightly more flare from a fitted waist and trousers are slim with no turn-ups.

Canadians and Americans have accelerated the trend towards lighter weight suits for winter wear. It has now definitely caught on in Britain and many lightweight suits were shown for city wear.

There were lighter and brighter colors, even for business suits, and tweed country suits and jackets were also in lightweight materials.

LAPELS WIDER

Other details are coat lapels slightly wider than last year, and often softly rolled. Sleeves are narrower and there is evidence that the double-breasted suit is coming back, usually with back vents.

Dinner suits were all in lightweight fabrics, often a 10-oz. mixture of wool and mohair. Some were in medium grey with black facings, others in blue or black, some with colored facings or linings.

Coats were very short with the new split shoulder line.

Broiled Spiced Tangerines

One-quarter cup fresh tangerine juice; ¼ cup sugar; ¼ teaspoon cinnamon; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; ¾ cup Chablis or other white table wine; 1 to 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice; 2 pounds tangerines, peeled, sectioned.

Combine tangerine juice, sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg in saucepan. Bring to boil and simmer for 3 minutes; add wine. Remove from heat; add lemon juice and tangerine sections. Pour into shallow baking dish; broil 6 to 8 inches from heat for a few minutes, until golden. Serve as dessert or as accompaniment for meat, fish or poultry. Good hot or cold.

Baked Brandied Tangerines

One-quarter cup granted tangerine peel; 1½ cups water; 1½ cups sugar; ¼ cup brandy; 2 pounds tangerines, peeled, sectioned.

Combine tangerine peel, water and sugar in saucepan; bring to boil and boil one minute. Strain peel from syrup; stir in brandy. Place tangerine sections in shallow baking dish; cover with syrup. Bake uncovered at 375 degrees 20 minutes.

Miss Pamela Birley Wed In St. Luke's Church

A Christmas wedding took place in St. Luke's Church yesterday afternoon when Rev. T. D. B. Ragg, at an altar decorated with white chrysanthemums and holly, heard the vows of Miss Pamela Mary Birley and Mr. Robert Warley Wilson.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Birley, Transit Road, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a stunning gown of imported French brocade fashioned on princess lines with a basque bodice, long lily-point sleeves and a V-neckline. A large bridal rose enhanced the back of the full, hooped skirt which flowed to a chapel train. Her silk illusion veil misted from an elegant crown of opalescent crystal. She carried gardenias on a prayer book.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Jacqueline Mackey, wore a leaf green dress of silk brocade fashioned with fitted bodice, cap sleeves and scoop neckline. The full skirt was accented with back detailing. Miss Mackey carried a bouquet of red carnations and holly.

The groom had Mr. Ian and Mrs. S. P. Birley, Transit Road, as best man. Ushers were Mr. Peter Caley and Mr. Nick Prowse. The groom, of University School, Victoria, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Wilson, Warwickshire, England.

A reception was held at the Union Club after the ceremony. Mr. Brian Roberts proposed the toast to the bride's happiness. Among guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ahlsen of Seattle and Miss Betsy Bladdeau, Handy, B.C.

Cabinet Told:

Laws Cripple Unions

Labor legislation has now before the courts and would likely prove costly and tedious.

"If our government, as it frequently claims, is genuinely interested in equality for all citizens in extending and promoting political and economic democracy then we submit repeal of bills 42 and 43 would be a convincing argument in support of this claim," stated the brief.

In other submissions, the federation:

- Said the business outlook for 1962 gives little cause for optimism to the thousands of unemployed in B.C. nor to new entrants to the labor force.
- It was recommended a special study be made to investigate the plight of young job seekers in order to help resolve their predicament.
- In addition it was recommended the provincial government step up its contribution to the winter works program by paying 50 per cent of the costs now borne by municipalities.
- "Unemployment has continued to remain the number one problem in B.C. and Canada," said the brief. "Thus far neither government has made any significant contribution to this serious social and economic problem and the measures proposed fall far short of meeting present needs."
- Appealed to the government to provide free education in high schools, colleges

The legislation, passed at the 1960 and 1961 sessions of the legislature, made trade unions entities which could be sued and forbade unions from making contributions to political parties.

Yesterday the federation spokesmen said legal tests of both pieces of legislation were

Garden Notes

Bring on the Blooms

By M. V. CHESTNUT, FRES

The Christmas season can hardly be considered complete without flowers in the house, and I am all for mortgaging next month's pay cheque to buy enough cut blooms from the florist to fill every vase and bowl in the house. Only too often, though, a flat packetbook or a bank account suffering from paralytic anaemia will have the effect of throwing us on our own resources for our floral decorations.

In any case, one can take quite a lot of pride in a bowl of home-grown flowering bulbs or an arrangement of flowers and foliage gathered from one's own garden in the depths of winter. It isn't too easy to bring the bulbs into bloom at exactly the right time, nor to find a sufficient selection from the garden, but with a little care and attention to detail, it can be done.

Bulb bowls are the great standby at Christmas, but the only kinds likely to be in flower are the jonquils, the Paper whites, the Craigford narcissus and the Chinese sacred lily—another narcissus. If the flower buds are not fully developed by now and the bulbs obviously have a long way to go before blooming, it is just asking for trouble to try to force them into flower.

If, however, the buds are formed and seem to be about ready to burst, yet hang fire and refuse to open, they can be jolted into action. About 48 hours before they are needed, water the bowls with a solution of two teaspoonfuls salt-petre in a quart of warm water—this shot in the arm will open up the buds right smartly.

On the other hand, if your bulbs are coming along too fast and the development of the buds is such as to lead you to believe they will open too soon, they can be held back by setting the bowls in a dark and very cool place. The buds will open much more slowly at a temperature of 45 degrees or lower, and in any event, all newly-opened bulb flowers should go into cool darkness for 12 hours to "set." This process lengthens the life of the blooms and enhances their beauty.

When no bulbs are ready, the garden will often yield a mixed bag of floral material if you look hard enough and with a perceptive eye.

If you are lucky enough to have a clump or two of the Paris daisy, this pale yellow Marguerite is in full bloom now and its cut flowers are grand for indoor use. You can often find the odd primrose, violet, late stocks, snap and calendula still hanging on. The Last Rose of Summer is apt to be a bit too full-blown, but if you are lucky, you might find a few fit for cutting.

Some species of crocus are showing buds now, and with these, it is worthwhile arranging a bit of protection from the rain in the form of clothes or jam jars. If you have a patch of hellebores—the Christmas rose—glass or plastic-covered boxes are almost essential to ensure long stems and flowers which are not splashed with mud and rain.

The winter-flowering jasmine is usually opening a few buds around Christmas week and, if the sprays are cut when the buds first show a crack of color, they will expand and blossom indoors, lasting quite a long time in water. A few berried sprigs of pyracantha are grand in a centre-piece arrangement; so are bits of holly, with the leaves washed in soapy water to make them shine.

Don't forget, too, the multi-colored autumn foliage of the wild blackberries, which often lingers on all winter.

Fighting Crime at Last

WASHINGTON—There's a hell of a lot going on in the justice department, typical of the dedicated eagle-beavers brought in by Attorney-General Robert Kennedy. "But it's going to take three or four years before we land some of these guys."

The endless marble corridors of the justice department ring with a new and certainly different concern for law enforcement, which adds up to a whole new philosophy of federal responsibility. After 30 years of almost total neglect, the justice department has mounted a massive attack on organized crime, which for all these years J. Edgar Hoover has insisted didn't exist and, if it did exist, belonged to local authorities rather than to the federales.

While the FBI spent itself chasing two-bit bank robbers (which really should have been left to local authorities) or kidnappers (who are not much of a national problem) and keeping an eye on the Communist party (where it does an excellent job), the huge national crime cartels enriched by massive profits from gambling were happily left alone to corrupt city police departments, mayors, and legislatures.

The New Frontier's attack, headed by the energetic and fearless Mr. Kennedy, has been simple, uncomplicated, and direct. First, Kennedy got the justice department to admit there was a problem; second, that it was its problem, not that of some constable in Paduk.

Next, the attorney-general drove through Congress by sheer drive (not unhindered by the fact that he is his brother's brother) five laws designed to make it extremely difficult to run a national gambling empire.

All are designed to take the profit out of gambling. It is the gambling profit, of course, which finances the crime empire, including narcotics, prostitution, labor racketeers, and extortion, but more particularly it is this vast reservoir of gambling money that corrupts law enforcement at all levels and which does so much to warp the moral fibre of the land.

These laws aim at the source of the problem. Have they worked? Well, the laws only went into force in September and already many race wires throughout the country are shut down. There have been a few prosecutions but many more are in the works.

Even more important than ramming the laws through Congress Kennedy has done a massive job of diplomacy in order to get the various law enforcement and investigative groups in the federal government to co-operate with each other. Previously there had been great jealousies, antagonisms, and wasteful duplication of effort between such agencies as the FBI, the Narcotics Bureau, the Treasury Department, Secret Service, SEC, Post Office, FHA, Labor Department, and others.

Seven hundred known racketeers, including all the big boys in organized crime, are now under the closest possible surveillance and every scrap of information that one agency has is shared by all of them.

This is just the beginning. Kennedy's drive and enthusiasm has lifted the morale of U.S. attorneys clear across the country.

Pub Fund Beats Bank

LONDON—One of the best ways to save money for Christmas in England is to give a certain sum every week to your local pub-keeper, who puts it away for you until the end of the year in what is called a Mutual Loan Society, or what Americans would call a Wet Christmas Club.

You can deposit anything from a half crown to five pounds a week into the "society," and then add two bob a week for what is called a booze fund. Two weeks before Christmas you get your money plus about 4 per cent interest and a credit for booze which you can buy in bottles to take home. During the year if you get thirty in the pub you can borrow from the fund to see you through.

The advantages to the pub-keeper are obvious. He gets to see his customers once a week, at least, for the deposit and he also makes some profit on the booze. The advantages to the customer are even more obvious. It's much more fun to save your money in a pub than it is in a bank or post office and besides in England people trust their pub-keepers more than they do their post office.

We were invited to go with a friend, Mrs. Fred Tupper, to her pub, "The Heroes of Almo" in St. John's Wood, for what is known as "pay-out night." This is the night when all the members of the club receive their year's savings and it's a very gala occasion indeed, the biggest night of the year for the pub-keepers next to New Year's Eve. Everyone gets very dressed up and free sandwiches and pickled onions are passed around, while the members buy each other drinks and congratulate themselves on how farighted they were in saving their money for the holiday season.

Although we weren't a member of the Christmas club, we were accepted as one of them and it was a very touching evening. Mrs. Reilly, the owner, had "The Heroes of Almo" hanging with Christmas decorations (she broke her arm doing it, which made it impossible for her to wash the glasses, so her customers did it for her) and there were smiles on everyone's faces.

Mrs. Tupper had put in a pound a week and received £34, though she was fined two pounds because she hadn't borrowed from her savings during the year.

"You can't run a loan society," Mrs. Reilly explained, "if people don't borrow from it. My best customers are the ones who borrow the most."

The booze fund came to five pounds for Mrs. Tupper. "This savings is a wonderful thing," said a nice old lady weaving next to us. "It gives you a chance to buy some presents for the kiddies and get things out of hock besides. And there's even some left over to have a bash before New Year's."

A Mrs. Leary ("Just call me Dinah, love") told us payout night was her favorite evening of the year. "This is the only night I can afford to drink gin in the middle of the week," she said.

At this point a man told us, "We have a fine pub here I hate to use the word but you can get intellectual conversation here, and talk about music and art and all those kind of things. But the young ones aren't saving their money anymore. The reason is they don't come to pubs. They go to coffee houses and dance halls. No chance of saving your money there. And then Christmas comes and where are they? Have to borrow from mum and dad who have been saving their money all year in the pub."

"That's right, love," Mrs. Leary said. "They all want washing, the young ones do."

"The Heroes of Almo" paid out £100 that night, of which about £100 was consumed on the premises. But we could see the merit of saving your money in a bar as opposed to saving it in a bank. By saving it in a bar you cut out the middleman. Your barman is your banker and you won't find a friendlier chap on pay-out night anywhere.

Hollywood Today

It's Never Too Early for Bing

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Here it is the middle of December and Bing Crosby is planning a fishing trip in Colorado for next June, with wife Kathy, Jane Wyman, her husband Freddie, and their friends, the Dave Chasens. They charter a bus and off they go.

Jack Lemmon and Fritzie Furr were very amused at Ben Mize's antics in Santa Monica. Ben has made such a hit with his night club that he's rich enough to retire and probably will, Lemmon, by the way, wanted Ben Furr to play his father in "Dangerous Silence." He called Powell in Palm Springs, but "I'm a retired old goat" was Bill's reply.

Max Baer flew all the way from Rome for 24 hours in Hollywood to sign for a picture at United Artists and to see Nancy Kwan.

Ask a question of Sidney Poitier, and you get an honest answer. "Why was 'The Love Men' cancelled?"

I asked Sidney, "Lack of finance," he replied. The movie had been set for November in Rome. Poitier is now re-starting with Bobby Darin in "Point Blank," for Stanley Kramer.

Eddie Albert, who played a surgeon in "The Young Doctors," says that what with "The Interns" and "Doctor Kildare" on TV, also the medical Ben Casey, he has a bright idea for a Christmas present. A "do it yourself" brain-surgery kit. Eddie has gone back to France to complete his role in "The Longest Day."

Yul Brynner would rather take pictures than make them. He's on assignment by Paris Match magazine to cover "Terra Bulha." So far, Yul has snapped 3,000 pics.

I hear that Arlene Francis was offered the Jack Paar "Tonight" TV spot. But Arlene is more interested in making movies.

Car 'Exported'

Licence Expired Motorist Fined

An Esquimalt man whose Nevada driver's licence was suspended by the provincial motor vehicles branch was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty in Esquimalt court yesterday to driving while disqualified.

Lewis A. Tuley, 429 Lampson, told Magistrate Ostler he had driven his Nevada-licensed car to the customs office so it might be sent back to the U.S.

He admitted he had been deported from that country as an illegal alien and his permit to have the car in Canada had expired.

"That's why the car was being exported and I'm not," said Tuley.

Tuley's licence to drive was revoked earlier this year until he could file proof of financial responsibility following convictions in Vancouver on three traffic offences, including hit-and-run.

He was given two weeks to pay the fine after he told the court that, as a deported alien, he would not be following his car back to the United States.

Top Hit Opera Closes

NEW YORK (AP)—The Three Penny Opera, which grossed $3,000,000, closed Saturday night after 2,812 performances. It holds the record for the longest run off Broadway. The Marc Blitzstein English-language adaptation of the Bertolt Brecht classic with its Kurt Weill score opened at the 100-seat de Lys theatre in Greenwich Village Sept. 20, 1955.

Hundreds Duped

Caldough Gets Six Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—George Caldough, the dapper young man-about-town who liked to call himself "boy promoter," got a man-sized prison sentence Monday for what the B.C. Supreme Court called "fraud on a gigantic scale."

Caldough, 34, was sentenced by Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan to six years in penitentiary for his part in a fraudulent stock promotion in which investors from Florida to California were bilked of about $400,000.

Two now-penniless companies in the "Caldough empire," Mount Baker Investments Limited and Eagle Plains Developments Limited, were fined $10,000 each for the same fraud.

"It is difficult to imagine fraud on a more gigantic scale," said Mr. Justice Rutan.

He said hundreds of gullible victims had been duped by a scheme which had "all the paraphernalia of the grand fraud—the sucker lists, the long-distance telephone, the gaudy prospectuses, the high-pressure selling."

The judge said he had been prepared to hand out a seven-year sentence but was taking into account the 13 months Caldough had spent in prison awaiting trial.

It was absurd, he said, to compare Caldough and those like him to the "courageous entrepreneurs" who built Canada's railways and developed the mining and oil industries.

Defence counsel Victor Stephens had referred to Caldough during his trial as "a man with a vision," like Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Caldough, in a statement to the court after he was sentenced, said he felt he had been "more guilty of irrational conduct than I am of out-and-out fraud."

"People will say, 'What's six years?' He'll still have the $400,000 when he gets out. But I never made this amount of money—I never even made $72,000. . . I have been foolish, irresponsible and irrational."

Five People Injured In Downtown Crash

A two-car crash at Johnson and Broad Saturday night sent five persons to hospital with minor injuries.

Kerry F. Vivian and Levy Swain, HMCS Ottawa, and Jack Fisher, HMCS Naden, were treated at HMCS Naden hospital.

Grace Prudhomme, 1906 Birch, and Malcolm Hemeon, 723 Field Street, were treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Cars were driven by Charles E. Hemeon, 3251 Alder, and Kerry F. Vivian, police said.

The crash sent the navy man's car into a cluster light. Mrs. Betty Yablonski, 2727 Avebury, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital early Sunday for treatment of possible shoulder injuries when the car in which she was a pasenger was involved in a two-car crash at Quadra and Pandora.

Police said the cars were driven by Victor Yablonski, 2727 Avebury, and Ther Hurdall, 3127 Davin.

Linda McClintock, 16, of 2543 Graham, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for injuries suffered in a collision at Finlayson and Jackson.

Drivers were identified by police as Robert Coudwell, 761 Wilson, and Raymond Larson, 3282 Whittier. Larson was hurt slightly.

Colorful Dance Show Offers Wide Program

By BERT BINNY

Translated from its usual spring date to Christmas but, nevertheless, still full of vigor, color, gaiety and variety, the Florence Clough Dance Revue went on at the Royal Theatre last night. The Sunday dress rehearsal suggested a show of considerable interest and skill.

Of about three dozen assorted items, four were of the production type, "Toyland," "The Wizard of Oz," "Les Mademoiselles Jolies" and "Winter Wonderland."

FREE ADAPTION

"Toyland" was subtitled "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," which might confuse musical experts but certainly did not worry the dancers, mostly dolls and soldiers but also including five mice and a poodle.

"The Wizard of Oz" — a rather free adaption of the original story — presented problems. The lead performers had to watch not only their dancing but acting technique. At times this proved a bit too much for them but Denise Warhol was a satisfactory "Dorothy" and Nadine Stewart made an excellent "Guardian of the City of Emeralds."

SPIRITED AFFAIR

"Les Mademoiselles Jolies" is the kind of spirited, free-wheeling affair in which Miss Clough and her lines of "ponies" always sparkle with particular brilliance.

The revue ended with "Winter Wonderland" which provided skaters, reindeer, snow fairies and a corps de ballet.

The guest artist was the very popular Victoria singer Irene Henderson. Nadine

Stewart and Rhonda Williams filled vocal solo spots as well.

Veteran performers such as Sherry Ross, Adele Smiri, Norrena MacPherson, Rema Stofor, Coleen Campbell, Irene Boone and Diane Croft were all in fine form, and Joy Hewitt, Marion Gibson and Patsy Halsey were impressive among the younger performers.

Miss Halsey has a lithe movement, quite enchanting to watch.

May Guthrie and Ron Purcell also appeared to particular advantage in an apache routine.

The show was produced and directed by Florence Clough and sponsored by the International Order of Job's Daughters and the Order of de Molay. The orchestra was under the direction of Billy Tickle and the pianists were Winifred Smele and Irene Boone.

Truce Bids Halt War In Katanga

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Acting Secretary-General Thant has instructed the UN command in the Congo to seek a temporary truce, a UN spokesman said today.

(From Reuters, UPI)

ELISABETHVILLE—Katanga province and the United Nations were reported Monday night to have agreed to stop fighting while Katanga President Moise Tshombe and central Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula meet today in a bid to straighten out their differences.

The secessionist province's information minister, Albert Nyeembo, announced his government and the UN have agreed to a "temporary truce" during the Tshombe-Adoula meeting scheduled for today at Kitona, a United Nations-controlled town west of the central capital of Leopoldville.

The meeting was arranged at Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, Monday by United States Ambassador Edmund Gullion. Tshombe drove there to see Gullion.

MINE HQ ATTACKED

Fighting in the Elisabethville area stopped in the wake of a fierce UN ground air attack Monday which scored few successes against determined Katangan troops.

Main target of repeated rocket and cannon attacks by UN Swedish and Indian fighter planes was the big Union Miniere Mining Company headquarters on the outskirts of this capital under siege for 13 days.

COMPANY ACCUSED

The company, backbone of the Katanga economy, has been accused by the UN of providing arms and bases for the troops of the secessionist province.

On the ground, UN armored cars, followed by patrols, fought their way into central Elisabethville but were unable to wrest control of the downtown area from Katanga troops.

Spirits for Mending

Neighbors' Burdens Are Also Yours

By TED PULFORD

Among all of mankind's many calendars, there is no day quite like Christmas.

This day more than any other, calls us to spiritual account and bids us measure our worth to our fellow man.

It is a reckoning we should welcome because—on Christmas Day—we are none of us one iota richer in the true values than the poorest man among us. On this day, finally, we become responsible for one another.

Donations to the 500 Fund may be mailed or brought to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or left at Acousticon of Victoria, 716 Yates, between 9 and 5.

It is not a comforting thing to read—or to write—Christmas stories without happy endings, but this is the season of truth; the season for turning to the blind, the lame and the bereft of hope and saying: "We see you. You are part of us. We will help you."

During the weeks just past, I visited many of the men and women whose families will receive 500 Fund cheques this Christmas. I have seen enough pain and hardship, frustration and despair, broken hearts and broken dreams, to last me a lifetime.

I have noted, too, the almost tangible sense of abandonment which runs through the homes of these people like some terrible disease.

The law of course, will not let them freeze, or starve, or sicken without treatment; but the welfare regulations make no provision for the restoration of a crushed spirit or the nursing of a broken heart.

No agency but the people of Victoria can supply cures for these maladies and the 500 Fund was created for their

UN May Lose Britain Over Congo—Home

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Lord Home said last night the United Nations' role in the Congo could reach a point where Britain would have to withdraw its support from the world organization.

He said the UN faces the danger of becoming involved in a war "which could spread into months and years."

Sukarno Exhorts Indonesians With War Cry

'Liberate New Guinea'

(CP from AP-Reuters)

JAKARTA — President Sukarno today ordered the mobilization of the Indonesian people to "liberate" West New Guinea from its Dutch rulers.

Sukarno told a cheering crowd in Jogjakarta, the capital during the Indonesian revolutionary days:

'WRECK EFFORTS'

"I order you to wreck the Dutch efforts to set up a puppet state and to hoist the red and white Indonesian flag in West Irian. I order total mobilization of the Indonesian people to liberate West Irian from the grip of the Dutch."

FORCES ALERTED

Sugarno stated he had ordered the armed forces to be prepared for his command, to be given at anytime, to invade West Irian.

The president's speech, heard here over Radio Indonesia, was delivered at a meeting attended by 30 cabinet ministers, 42 heads of foreign missions and the three armed forces leaders.

Indonesia claims 151,000-square-mile West New Guinea and has countered Dutch moves seeking United Nations support for granting self-determination to the territory.

TOUGHER LINE?

Indonesia's 800,000-man army was put on the alert Monday following a government declaration that it should be ready to move against West New Guinea.

There was speculation that India's invasion of three Portuguese-held territories would prompt Sukarno to take a tougher line on his claim to the territory.

France Backs Red Stand

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — France and South Africa joined the Soviet Union yesterday in opposing a proposal for a $200,000,000 bond issue to bail the United Nations out of the Congo. The three countries are friends.

"It was apparently very hip, among those which have refused to pay anything toward the $10,000,000-a-month Congo costs which are the primary cause of the UN's financial crisis."

Takeover 'Justified' By Ghandi

LONDON (UPI)—The Indian Information Service quoted the late Mohandas K. Ghandi yesterday in justification for India's invasion of Goa.

The service quoted Ghandi as saying in 1946 that, "Goa cannot be allowed to exist as a separate entity in opposition to the laws of a free state."

Most of Goa Falls to India

BOMBAY (AP)—Attacking by land, sea and air, Indian troops overcame Portuguese resistance and occupied all of Goa except the capital city, the army announced today.

It said Indian troops were entering the Portuguese colonial capital, Nova Goa.

LITTLE RESISTANCE

Indian officials said the end of 4½ centuries of Portuguese rule on the subcontinent was imminent. The smaller of Portugal's three tiny west coast territories—Diu and Damao—were reported to have been taken with little or no resistance.

FORCES POISED

Reuters reported from Belgaum, on the Goa front south of here, that Indian forces were poised outside Nova Goa and that a defence ministry spokesman had said their formal victorious entry would probably be delayed until this morning.

But Reuters said well-armed Portuguese troops were reported to have entrenched themselves in a semi-circle around Nova Goa for a fight to the finish.

Reuters said Indian forces apparently were ordered to

West Deplores Invasion But Red Bloc Applauds

(From AP, UPI)

LONDON—Britain sided Monday with ancient ally Portugal against Commonwealth partner India in the Goa conflict. The Communists applauded and Western powers deplored the Indian invasion of three Portuguese territories.

Such neutrals as Indonesia and the United Arab Republic came to the defence of Prime Minister Nehru, a fellow neutral. But the Western press called the Indian military action an affront to the principles so often preached by Nehru.

Britain threw its weight behind a Portuguese appeal to the United Nations.

INDIA CRITICIZED

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker criticized India and called for United Nations action to settle the dispute over Goa peacefully.

He said Canada urged India to act peacefully.

End of a Neutralist

Man of Peace Wages War

By PHIL NEWSON

United Press International

"What the world is seeing at the moment is a perfect example of the kind of a neutralist a neutral can turn into when scratched."

It was the Sydney, Australia, Sun speaking editorially of the Indian attack on Goa and two other, tiny Portuguese enclaves on the west coast of India.

It was a reaction which the role of aggressor marked the end of United States, British and United Nations attempts to bring the quarrel to mediation.

Having made his decision, Nehru, the peace-maker, thus turned his back on others who would attempt to keep the peace.

It is as the Sydney Sun remarked, a perfect example of a neutralist scratched.

Certainly, his military venture against the small and ancient Portuguese holding on the Indian subcontinent seemed out of accord with his own words in Mexico City scarcely a month ago.

There, speaking to Mexico City councilmen, he said: "War cannot solve any problem... I hope that men will adjust their minds to the idea of peace."

But two weeks later, back in his own favorite forum before the Indian Parliament in New Delhi, he expressed his own inner conflict.

"I am free to confess to this House," he said, "that my soul reacts against war anywhere. That is the training I received throughout my life, and I cannot easily get rid of it at the age of 72."

The action casting Nehru as

Portugal Interns Indians

LONDON (Reuters)—Portugal rounded up Indians in its overseas territories Monday, allegedly for their own protection in the wake of the Indian invasion of the Portuguese territory of Goa on India's west coast.

The biggest group interned—about 22,000—was in Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, where there is a large concentration of Indian traders.

Jury Raps Negligence

Hunting Death Father's Fault

COURTENAY—A coroner's jury ruled Monday the shooting of an elderly man by an 11-year-old boy was accidental but due to the negligence of an indulgent father.

Jurors were inquiring into the death of Murdoch MacDonald, 70, while he was picking Christmas greenery in the forest near his home at Buckley Bay.

The boy said he fired with his 12-gauge shotgun at what he thought was a deer and then found Mr. MacDonald shot in the back.

A deer was about 50 feet from the boy and Mr. MacDonald was about 70 feet beyond that.

The father told the jury he was hunting with his three sons, aged 15, 11 and 6.

He and the oldest boy carried 30-30 calibre rifles and the 11-year-old a shotgun. The youngest boy carried no weapon.

The jury said the father was negligent in allowing the boy to carry a firearm and recommended that adults who take minors hunting should be responsible for their instructions of the game act and subject to penalty.

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1961

What Takes Mail So Long?

Why does it take longer for mail to come from Vancouver than it used to?

Union official Victor Midgley thinks there's a shortage of staff at the Vancouver post office.

Victoria postmaster Allan Davies says it's a transportation problem between the two cities.

Mr. Midgley, international representative of the carpenters' union, said he would ask for an inquiry by the postmaster-general in Ottawa.

He will bring the matter before the Victoria Labor Council in hopes it will be passed on to the Canadian Labor Congress and thence to Ottawa.

Mail from New York City and Washington, D.C., is received in Victoria faster than mail from downtown Vancouver, said the union official, who contends the Vancouver post office has "not enough people to handle the volume."

He said: "They should hire more help at $1 an hour, especially at Christmas time to alleviate the rush."

Postmaster Davies said delivery was hampered when the midnight ferry to Victoria was discontinued some time ago, and reduction in the number of flights when Trans-Canada Air Lines put larger aircraft in service brought a closing time of 9 p.m. for Vancouver-Victoria mails and 9:30 p.m. closing here.

Oak Bay Holds Back Wants Plans First

Wilson Meets Scurrah

Mayor Percy Scurrah conferred with mayor-elect E. B. Wilson yesterday to arrange for a conference at 10:30 this morning.

"I don't know what he wants to ask me, but I am ready to give him every assistance I possibly can," Mayor Scurrah said.

A request from Mayor Percy Scurrah for $7,000 from Oak Bay to support the city's centennial observance was tabled by Oak Bay council last night to await a list of projects being drawn up by the centennial committee.

Coun. Fred Hawes said last night representatives of the municipalities felt they would like to support the city in a permanent construction project of some type rather than underwrite centennial activities.

He said the original idea was for municipalities to underwrite shows and special attractions brought to town for the centennial. "If an attraction is a success it will pay for itself, but should the show be rained out there would be money to pay for it."

COMMON POT

"I don't think throwing dollars into a common pot is a good idea," said Coun. Allan Cox. "There should be something more."

Coun. F. A. Robinson pointed out three choices open: to present the city with a cash gift, to enter a joint project with the other municipalities, or to underwrite some centennial activities.

LETTER POINTS OUT

The letter to council pointed out that the city has already appropriated $25,000 this year.

and including $50,000 in the provisional budget for 1962.

Suggested contribution for Saanich is $18,068 and $4,825 for Esquimalt.

CELEBRATIONS

All celebrations will be available to the people of Greater Victoria, and the committee feels they will wish to contribute toward the cost, the letter added. Unused funds would be returned with an accounting.

Saanich Advice

Take a Stand On Breakwater

The Corporation of Saanich may get its feet wet on the issue of whether a breakwater should be constructed at Cadboro Bay.

Incoming council will be given a nudge in that direction by the parks and recreation committee, which last night called for a stand to be taken.

Reeve George Chatterton brought up the subject during

Tiny Plots To Hold Ashes

The Public Utilities Commission has given tentative approval to city plans to use small plots of land in Ross Bay Cemetery for the burial of cremated remains.

City cemetery committee plans to sell such plots, two feet square, for $25, including a marker and perpetual maintenance.

Half buried under night's loot is Gordon Cadwell, 746 Kings, who was among busiest bidders at Maynard's Auction Rooms. More than 3,000 toys were sold to help Colonist help city's neediest families.

Arena Rocks Eyed As Parking Area

Possibility of levelling the top of rock behind Memorial Arena and building a parking facility on it was discussed at city hall yesterday.

The discussion took place during a meeting between the city arena committee and Memorial Arena commission. Representatives of Victoria Curling Club were expected to attend but did not appear.

Curling club officials have approached city hall to purchase most of the land between the curling club building and Memorial Arena to allow a planned, $1,000,000 expansion program.

Yesterday's meeting was to discuss if it is desirable for the city to sell the land, which has been earmarked for off-street parking for arena patrons—and, if it is desirable, how it can be done.

Estimate cost of blasting out a huge outcrop of rock to allow use of the land for arena parking is $100,000.

The new plan would involve blasting the top of the rock flat and building over it. The meeting decided to seek estimates of what this new plan would cost.

No decision was made on the desirability of selling the land in Victoria Curling Club.

Gales Leave Behind $2,000 Roofing Bill

Saturday's gusty gale ripped roofs from two city buildings, causing $2,000 damage.

A recently completed tar and gravel roof on Macdonald Park which cost $1,400 was destroyed in the storm, "stripped off like a flag," parks administrator Herbert Warren told a meeting of city parks committee yesterday.

The damage was covered by insurance but the committee decided to spend another $1,500 to cover the shiplap ceiling with plywood.

Cracks in the shiplap ceiling were blamed for the damage, according to the city's building department.

Mayor Percy Scurrah last night called on motorists to take extra care during the Christmas rush period.

"Courtesy is a must," he said. "Elderly folk, youngsters and parcel-laden shoppers add to the usual traffic."

"Motorists would be well advised to serve and to yield to their guests before they leave for home," he said. "And for those who must drive, it should be in or out of the usual traffic."

Grit Wins Ham Over Fist And More Power to Him

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

CHRISTMAS CHEER: At the Victoria Gyo Club luncheon yesterday, Oak Bay Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane was presented with an autographed photograph of one of his better-known constituents, Premier Bennett. The inscription read: "More power to you!"

Later, during the luncheon, Alan was announced the winner of the club's weekly draw and was presented with a large ham which was this week's prize.

As he was leaving a friend glanced at the booty he was clutching and drily remarked: "Hah! Carrying a big ham in each hand, eh?"

CALLING DR. KILDARE: If you were admitted to hospital during the past year the chances are your stay was less than 10 days and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service paid $185 toward the care you received.

These are averages worked out by the department. If you're a father you were probably admitted because of a heart condition or cancer.

If you're a mother you likely had a baby.

And if you're the youngster in the household it was probably for tonsils or adenoids.

But, points out Alex Forbes, some people were treated for odd complaints.

For instance: There was the interior resident treated for a rattlesnake bite—a rarity in this day and age. Another man came down with Psittacosis, a familiarly known as "parrot fever," a contagious virus transmitted by parrots or budgie birds.

Two Okanagan youngsters suffered tick paralysis. The paralysis disappears when the tick is removed.

Then there was the patient with Takayasu's Disease—an extremely rare vascular disturbance called the "pulsiless disease," the cause of which is unknown.

But the most unusual case was one for which there was no precedent in medical history. Called "auto-hypersensitivity" it's the reaction of plasma to the patient's own blood stream.

Incidentally, the BCHIS has paid out $393,000,000 since its inception in 1949.

THE THINGS THEY SAY: A delegation from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers was informed by Premier Bennett yesterday that Prime Minister Diefenbaker "won't be in Ottawa too much longer."

Commented chairman J. A. Bennett later: "Diefenbaker probably says the same thing about him!"

DEEP IN MY HEART: When Island Tug and Barge towed the bulk of the wartime frigate Centurion out to Heceta Rocks and sank her the other day, one high-placed official of the company was not on hand to see the death throes.

Donald Flintheart, now assistant to the president of Island Tug, served in the Coast Guard during the Second World War.

CAMP FOLLOWERS: Indignant supporters of mayor-elect Richard Wilson may have a successful campaign was aided not only by Liberals, but by Conservative and New Democratic Party members as well. And, they add, so what if the Liberals are eyeing Mr. Wilson as a possible party candidate—any party would be glad to have a man of such calibre.

LA TRIVIATA: One Christmas shopper in the city is still scratching her head over the rapid-fire changes on the prior tag on a youngster's blue jeans on a department store. She bought it at $1.49 only to find two days later it was going for 99 cents. She was kicking herself for a while until, a few days still later, she saw the same item at $1.99. Social Credit is making a big pitch for support in Eastern Canada with television spots and other forms of publicity aimed at winning their term in the next federal election. A new rough syrup on sale in Cuba is named Castro-Oil.

Truce Bids Halt War In Katanga

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI) — Katanga President Moise Tshombe flew to Kitona with U.S. Ambassador Edmund Gullion today to meet Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula.

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Acting Secretary-General Thant has instructed the UN command in the Congo to seek a temporary truce, officials said today.

(From Reuters, UPI)

ELISABETHVILLE—Katanga province and the United Nations were reported Monday night to have agreed to stop fighting while Katanga President Moise Tshombe and central Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula meet today in a bid to straighten out their differences.

The secessionist province's information minister, Albert Nyembo, announced his government and the UN have agreed to a "temporary truce" during the Tshombe-Adoula meeting scheduled for today at Kitona, a United Nations-controlled town west of the central capital of Leopoldville.

The meeting was arranged at Ndola, Northern Rhodesia, Monday by United States Ambassador Edmund Gullion. Tshombe drove there to see Gullion.

MINE HQ ATTACKED

Fighting in the Elisabethville area stopped in the wake of a fierce UN ground air attack Monday which scored few successes against determined Katangan troops.

Main target of repeated rocket and cannon attacks by UN Swedish and Indian fighter planes was the big Union Miniere Mining Company headquarters on the outskirts of this capital under siege for 15 days.

COMPANY ACCUSED

The company, backbone of the Katanga economy, has been accused by the UN of providing arms and bases for the troops of the secessionist province.

On the ground, UN armored cars, followed by patrols, fought their way into central Elisabethville but were unable to wrest control of the downtown area from Katanga troops.

Spirits for Mending

Neighbors' Burdens Are Also Yours

By TED PULFORD

Among all of mankind's many calendars, there is no day quite like Christmas.

This day, more than any other, calls us to spiritual account and bids us measure our worth to our fellow man.

It is a reckoning we should welcome because—on Christmas Day—we are none of us one iota richer in the true values than the poorest man among us. On this day, finally, we become responsible for one another.

Donations to the 500 Fund may be mailed or brought to The Daily Colonist, 2651 Douglas, or left at Accounting of Victoria, 740 Yates, between 9 and 5.

It is not a comforting thing to read—or to write—Christmas stories without happy endings, but this is the season of truth; the season for turning to the blind, the lame and the bereft of hope and saying: "We see you. You are part of us. We will help you."

During the weeks just past, I visited many of the men and women whose families will receive 500 Fund cheques this Christmas. I have seen enough pain and hardship, frustration and despair, broken hearts and broken dreams, to last me a lifetime.

I have noted, too, the almost tangible sense of abandonment which runs through the homes of these people like some terrible disease.

The law, of course, will not let them freeze, or starve, or sicken without treatment; but the welfare regulations make no provision for the restoration of a crushed spirit or the mending of a broken heart.

No agency but the people of Victoria can supply cures for these maladies and the 500 Fund was created for their use.

Season of Truth

The 500 Fund does not appeal to you for charity. It asks only that you extend your hand to these neighbors of yours who are in trouble this Christmas season.

Only a little more than 24 hours remains for you to put your cheque in the mail. Don't dull the pleasure of your own Christmas by being one of the ones who couldn't be bothered to help.

UN May Lose Britain Over Congo--Home

LONDON (AP) — Foreign Secretary Lord Home said last night the United Nations' role in the Congo could reach a point where Britain would have to withdraw its support from the world organization.

He said the UN faces the danger of becoming involved in a war "which could spread into months and years."

Sukarno Exhorts Indonesians With War Cry

'Liberate New Guinea'

(CP from AP-Reuters)

JAKARTA — President Sukarno today ordered the mobilization of the Indonesian people to "liberate" West New Guinea from its Dutch rulers.

Sukarno told a cheering crowd in Jogjakarta, the capital during the Indonesian revolutionary days:

'WRECK EFFORTS'

"I order you to wreck the Dutch efforts to set up a puppet state and to hoist the red and white Indonesia-flag in West Irian. I order total mobilization of the Indonesian people to liberate West Irian from the grip of the Dutch."

West Irian is the Indonesian name for West New Guinea.

FORCES ALERTED

Sukarno stated he had ordered the armed forces to be prepared for his command to be given at any time, to invade West Irian.

The president's speech, heard here over Radio Indonesia, was delivered at a meeting attended by 30 cabinet ministers, 42 heads of foreign missions and the three armed forces leaders.

Indonesia claims 151,000-square-mile West New Guinea and has countered Dutch moves seeking United Nations support for granting self-determination to the territory.

TOUGHER LINE?

Indonesia's 500,000-man army was put on the alert Monday following a government declaration that it should be ready to move against West New Guinea.

There was speculation that India's invasion of three Portuguese-held territories would prompt Sukarno to take a tougher line on his claim to the territory.

France Backs Red Stand

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — France and South Africa joined the Soviet Union yesterday in opposing a proposal for a $200,000,000 bond issue to bail the United Nations out of debt.

The three countries are among those which have refused to pay anything toward the $10,000,000-a-month Congo costs which are the primary cause of the UN's financial crisis.

VETO ON GOA END FOR UN?

Indian delegate C. S. Jha (left) and Portugal's V. V. Garin square off in UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union early today vetoed a Security Council resolution calling for a ceasefire in India's attack of Portuguese territories and the United States immediately charged that the move might be a beginning of the UN's "death."

The council voted seven to four in favor of the Western resolution asking for an immediate cessation of hostilities of Indian invasion forces in Goa, but one of the opposing votes was that of the Soviet Union, which could block

Takeover 'Justified' By Gandhi

LONDON (UPI) — The Indian Information Service quoted the late Mohandas K. Gandhi yesterday in justification of India's invasion of Goa.

The service quoted Gandhi as saying in 1946 that "Goa cannot be allowed to exist as a separate entity in opposition to the laws of a free state."

Portuguese Surrender

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Portuguese forces in Goa have surrendered and the Indian operation there has ended, an official Indian government announcement said here today.

Just 36 hours after Indian troops invaded the three Portuguese territories—Goa, Damao and Diu—the surrender of Goa's capital, Nova Goa, was announced.

FELL EARLIER

Goa was the largest of the three west coast territories with an area of 1,300 square miles. Damao and Diu, totaling 70 square miles in area, had fallen earlier.

The territories, which Portugal held since the 16th century and had vowed to defend to death, fell to Indian forces with little fight.

FEW CASUALTIES

A spokesman for the Indian defence ministry said casualties were light on both sides. Earlier reports from Belgaum, on the Goa front south of here, said Indian forces were poised outside Nova Goa but their formal victory entry would probably be delayed until this morning.

They claimed well-armed Portuguese troops were re-

West Deplores Invasion But Red Bloc Applauds

(From AP, UPI)

LONDON—Britain sided Monday with ancient ally Portugal against Commonwealth partner India in the Goa conflict. The Communists applauded and Western powers deplored the Indian invasion of three Portuguese territories.

Such neutrals as Indonesia and the United Arab Republic came to the defence of Prime Minister Nehru, a fellow neutral. But the Western press called the Indian military action an affront to the principles so often preached by Nehru.

Britain threw its weight behind a Portuguese appeal to the United Nations.

INDIA CRITICIZED

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker criticized India and called for United Nations action to settle the dispute over Goa peacefully.

He said Canada urged India

End of a Neutralist

Man of Peace Wages War

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press International

"What the world is seeing at the moment is a perfect example of the kind of a nationalist a neutral can turn into when scratched."

It was the Sydney, Australia, Sun speaking editorially of the Indian attack on Goa and two other tiny Portuguese enclaves on the west coast of India.

It was a reaction which the role of aggressor marked must have been shared by many witnessing the conflict between Jawaharlal Nehru, the philosopher of world peace, and Nehru, the prime minister of India hurling massive military strength against three little territories whose value seemed scarcely worth the bother.

Having made his decision, Nehru, the peace-maker, thus turned his back on others who would attempt to keep the peace.

It is as the Sydney Sun remarked, a perfect example of a neutralist scratched.

Certainly, his military venture against the small and ancient Portuguese holding on the Indian sub-continent seemed out of accord with his own words in Mexico City scarcely a month ago.

There, speaking to Mexico City councilmen, he said:

"War cannot solve any problem... (I hope that) men will adjust their minds to the idea of peace."

But two weeks later, back in his own favorite forum before the Indian Parliament in New Delhi, he expressed his own inner conflict.

"I am free to confess to this House," he said, "that my soul reacts against war anywhere. That is the training I received throughout my life, and I cannot easily get rid of it at the age of 72."

The action casting Nehru in

Portugal Interns Indians

LONDON (Reuters)—Portugal rounded up Indians in its overseas territories Monday, allegedly for their own protection in the wake of the Indian invasion of the Portuguese territory of Goa on India's west coast.

The biggest group interned—about 12,000—was in Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, where there is a large concentration of Indian traders.
